

WE NOMINATE

Carlos Heard Baker, a dedicated Princetonian for the past quarter-century and one of the most versatile men of letters on the American scene, whose second novel, "The Land of Rumbelow," has added a degree of sparkle and controversy to what has been an inordinately drab "literary summer." This first-rate volume, described by its 51-year old author as "A Fable in the Form of a Novel," marks the second time in five years that Baker, Woodrow Wilson Professor of Literature in the University and a former chairman of its Department of English, has used the groves of academe as the back-drop for a tautly written and intellectually stimulating work of fiction.

For the past several weeks reviewers across the country, with the marked exception of venomous treatment on the part of a news magazine, have viewed Baker's "Fable" with respect if not with enthusiasm. As he weaves his "tale of dark obsession about a quest for the key to a great writer's life," the more perceptive observers, led by "The New York Times' Orville Prescott, have speculated as to whether or not the decision of Baker's hero to abandon biographic material that might hurt innocent people is in any way suggestive of Baker's approach to his definitive biography of the late Ernest Hemingway.

It was in November, 1961, nine years after he had published the first full-length study of Hemingway, entitled "Hemingway, The Writer as Artist," that Baker was appointed official biographer of Hemingway by the Nobel Laureate's widow and publishing house, Charles Scribner's Sons. Since then Baker, who for some years carried forward an extensive correspondence with Hemingway without ever meeting the author face-to-face, has been on Hemingway's "trail of paper," stretching across three continents, and has been responsible for assembling here in the University Library new caches of Hemingway materials bringing to light hitherto unrevealed facts.

A native of Biddellford, Maine, and a member of the Class of 1932 at Dartmouth, where he won scholastic honors and participated in a variety of activities ranging from the presidency of his fraternity to the managership of the hockey team, Baker is a prolific and tireless writer. His output includes dozens of essays and reviews and runs the gamut from the successful first novel, "A Friend in Power" to a study of all of Shelley's chief poems and a sonnet sequence, "On Getting Back to Airplane Spotting After Ten Years," which carried off first prize in the initial Balch Prize Poetry Contest.

From his years in Hanover he moved on to Harvard for his M.A. and then entered the teaching profession. Before concentrating on the college level, this former member of the Borough's Board of Education spent three years in secondary schools—one in Maine and two in Buffalo, N. Y. He earned his doctorate at Princeton in 1940, three years after he had joined the University faculty, and was advanced to the rank of professor in 1951. The recipient of an honorary degree from Dartmouth in 1957, Baker during the year ahead will be holding forth as a Senior Fellow of the University's Council of the Humanities.

For his accomplishments as teacher, scholar and creative writer; for tackling Hemingway's life, one of the "most formidable jobs ever undertaken by a literary scholar"; for producing in the summer of 1963 a novel that is essentially "a vote for light against darkness, for life against death"; he is Town Topics' nominee as

READY FOR SEPT. 5?

Schools All Set to Go. Desks are piled in the halls so that summer cobwebs can be swept out of classroom corners. Books with new and cracking spines are beginning to arrive in cartons, and gym floors are being refinished and teachers are themselves prepared to sweep those summer cobwebs away from young brains.

School starts Thursday, September 5.

In Princeton, and especially in Princeton Township, the September song is always, "How many more?"

But during the past year, a new note has been added to the song and "How many more?" has become a Princeton refrain. Almost for the first time, in 1963, Princeton taxpayers began to balk at paying for schools and a word rarely heard in Princeton, the word "frills," was used more than once in reference to whatever part of a curriculum the taxpayer thought was expendable: French or music, gym or speech therapy.

I LIKE SCHOOL! Migrant workers' children love school, but the only chance they have to attend is during the summer weeks their parents work on New Jersey farms. This kindergartener with her paper chain is shown in the migrant school, Craubury. Her teacher is a Princeton high school student, Lanadee Liebtog, who worked as recreation volunteer at the school. Story in "Topics of the Town."

More. The concern with "how much more?" reflects the feeling of taxpayers throughout the entire state of New Jersey. For the first time in history, more than half of the total property tax dollar in the state is being spent for school purposes—51.5 percent. Property taxes for school purposes rose by $51 million—a record amount—during the calendar year 1963.

In Princeton Township last January, more than 150 residents appeared at the public hearing to speak against a school budget, this in a municipality which has traditionally passed its school budgets with scarcely a single question.

The budget passed, but after it had been pruned by more than $65,000. The previous budget carried the municipality through to full term with a narrow, narrow surplus (see story, page 3) of only two percent, and Township observers began a vigil to see how successful the pruned budget would turn out to be, this time next year.

Here They Come! When the doors, well-oiled and swinging, open up on September 5, they will welcome 4,791 students—or, at least, pupils—to Princeton schools. Last year on opening day there were 4,281.

These 510 freshly-scrubbed little faces (in newspapers, one must always refer to children on the first day of school as having "freshly-scrubbed faces") were certainly not on the scene last year. Where are the 510 who will appear in 1964? And in 1965?

Most of them will probably move into the Township because the well-built Borough has almost reached its limit. Township officials sometimes say hopefully that the high cost of land and housing in that municipality will keep down the number of young families with school-age children, and yet still they come.

It's not even accurate to speaking of the Borough as reaching its limit. The total elementary school population eases up, year by year. 53 more expected in Nassau Street School this year, 14 more in Witherspoon Street. Where does one put 53 more children in Nassau Street School? An interesting problem in the deployment of troops.

For the past two years, Princeton High has grown by about 90 boys and girls, and the Township is still the biggest sending district and sending more all the time. Valley Road's 1963 eighth grade was small, but '64 et seq. jump sharply in size.

Here's the tally:

	'61	'62	'63
Nassau St.	279	281	297
Witherspoon	600	611	664
Borough Elem.	379	392	961
High School	1493	1590	1680
Twp. Elem.	1800	1979	2150

The Borough is prepared, of course, with its new school cluster on Walnut Lane, but it will be some time before anyone can actually sit at a desk there. A school population survey, undertaken last spring, is now being processed. Nassau and Witherspoon Schools are up for sale.

The Township, with a new school completed just a year ago, is enlarging Riverside and Littlebrook to accommodate the 171 new pupils it expects in two weeks.

Throughout the state, there will be an increase of 49,000 in the enrollment of public school children. Total enrollment is expected to be 1,206,000, representing a 60 percent growth in the decade since 1953.

State Aid? New Jersey communities and of course Princeton, are on the short end of the ruler when it comes to paying for all these boys and girls. Township school board members examined with interest last week a "pie" pub-

A school is a community building, the property of men, women and taxpayers, not just the domain of boys and girls who occupy it for six hours every day.

In the Township, school buildings are used by everybody from square dancers to policemen, and "Community Park" school could not have been more aptly named.

Brownies, Cubs and Scouts of both sexes use the schools without charge. So do various PTA groups and Township police who gather for training under the auspices of the YMCA.

The Unitarian church school, the Educational Testing Service volleyball team, a private square-dance group, the Association for Brain-Damaged Children, the League of Women Voters, the Church Basketball League, the YMCA when it needs a gymnasium and the Township Recreation Commission when it needs room for an arts-and-crafts program—all these have been tenants of the Township Board of Education in the past year. Anybody want to sign up?

listed by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants which showed that most school systems in the United States derived 40 percent of their funds from state aid.

"We get about 10 percent," said Dr. John McKenna, superintendent of Township schools. Counting a small slice for Federal aid, this leaves about 90 percent to come straight from the pockets of local property owners.

Dr. McKenna cites a school district he knows on Long Island which received $3,100,000 in New York state aid toward its budget of $5,000,000, leaving only $1,700,000 to be raised by local taxes.

Organizations like the New Jersey Education Association would like to see the passage in November of Gov. Hughes' $750 million bond issue because passage of the issue would mean that schools would have an additional $250 million in state aid between 1961 and 1968.

Per pupil costs throughout the country have climbed—from a national average of about $240 in 1950, to $350 in 1960.

Up and Up. They go up in Princeton, too. Borough per-pupil costs are currently $570.83 for the elementary schools and $679.11 for the high school, compared to $543 and $604 a year ago. In the Township, the increase is from $575 a year ago to $618 currently.

Last February, budgets were defeated in 102 of the state's 518 school districts, and some observers wonder whether these defeats may not represent a kind of strike on the part of taxpayers to make the state wake up and pay more attention and more money to local districts.

The Princeton Township budget was, of course, passed. But the Hopewell Township budget was not, and neither was the budget for Hamilton or Ewing or Franklin Townships.

In February, in Hopewell, 16 percent of the voters (900 out of 5,500) came out to vote on a crucial $1,372,000 current expense budget, defeating it by 85 votes. Two weeks later, 25 percent of the electorate voted, defeating the budget a second time.

Then, according to state law, it went to Hopewell Township Committee and Hopewell Borough Council and $90,000 was trimmed away from current expense figures. The capital outlay was not changed from its $40,503.

"No" on School. In June, Hopewell voters did it a third time, defeating a $1,800,000 junior high school by 300 votes. Hopewell officials expect this September a six percent increase in enrollment over last year.

There will be "hotter than 30" pupils for each teacher. Substandard classrooms (i.e., basements) will be used in the elementary school for the first time. Sidit sessions will have to come, although not this year.

Profiling from last winter's unsettling budget hearing, Princeton Township's board of education is already laying, in a quiet way, a foundation for next year. George Grace, board finances chairman, told the board last week that he plans an educational campaign in the community, starting this fall, to explain needs and standards in the hope that informed voters will think and understand.

Township Police report that Jeffrey Aaron, 19, of Highland Park, skidded on the approach to the bridge and crossed over the white line. His light truck collided with a 1963 Cadillac owned by the Kimble Funeral Home, 1 Hamilton Avenue, and operated by Frank H. Duncan, 40, of Carter Road. The hood grille, door and fender of the Cadillac were damaged.

Police said that Mr. Duncan, seeing the skidding truck, had almost stopped at the time of the collision. There were no injuries and police issued no charges.

Three days later, a car driven by Leon E. Johnson, 32, of Florence, ended up a total loss when it left The Great Road. Mr. Johnson escaped injury.

According to the Township police, Mr. Johnson lost control as he rounded a curve near the Tenacre Foundation. After damaging some 40 feet of hedge in front of the home of Mr. Halford Jay, the car came to rest on its roof. The mishap occurred at 10 in the evening.

Police said Mr. Johnson admitted going 45 miles per hour in a 25-mile zone. He was charged with careless driving.

Late Sunday afternoon, one of the Borough's more treacherous intersections—Elm Road and Cleveland Lane—was the scene of a two-car accident. And, as in the previous two accidents, a non-resident of Princeton was the trigger.

As reported by Borough police, Arnold J. Howell, 23, of Washington, failed to observe a "stop" sign at the foot of Cleveland Lane and was struck by Mrs. Ann C. Clay, 37, of Cherry Valley Road, driving south on Elm Road. Both cars were extensively damaged.

Schools Have Surplus. The Township Board of Education greeted the opening of the new school year with the announcement that it had squeaked through its 1962-63 current expense budget with a surplus of $27,000.

As George Grace, finance chairman, pointed out at Thursday night's board meeting, this is less than 2 percent. The budget, passed by voters in 1962, was for $1,617,000. The fiscal year for that budget ended on June 30 of this year.

Actually, the surplus is $37,000, but the extra amount came from revenues which had not been included in the original budget.

"This is a very small margin for a budget of that size," commented Richard Pearson, chairman of the Board.

Mr. Grace, remarking upon the tight budget, said that 85 percent of current expenses reflected Board policies in regard to teacher salaries, breadth of curriculum and class size.

Purvis Is Named. L. E. Purvis, president of Gallup and Robinson, was appointed to fill the board vacancy left by Willis A. Bussard, who has moved from Princeton. Mr. Purvis will serve until the school election next February when the one year remaining in Mr. Bussard's term will appear on the ballot to be filled, along with the three regular three-year terms.

In addition, the board accepted with regret the resignation of Mrs. John McAndrew who plans to attend the Rutgers Graduate School of Education full time. Her term is scheduled to expire in February.

COMING BACK: Four of the five Princeton High School graduates who return as Borough teachers this fall met unofficially the other day with their former principal, William Rhodes (left), now secretary of the Board of Education. Above are Miss Marguerite Allison of 27 Birch Avenue, Class of 1958; Miss Elizabeth E. Schmidt of 92 Linden Lane, '59; Miss Carol Jones of Hopewell, '58, and John Houtenville of Plainsboro, '49. (Staff Photo)

Dr. John McKenna, superintendent of Township schools, said that all teaching posts are filled for the start of the school year, and that the "No vacancy" sign is out—at least for the time being. The board decided to hire an additional part-time French teacher because so many more students are qualifying for French.

Fees Raised. On the recommendation of Norman Anderson, secretary, the board voted to raise the fees charged for use of Township school gymnasiums. The fee will be raised from $5 to $10 for community organizations and to $20 for non-community organizations, based on the cost of keeping a gym open for two hours and maintaining it.

Organizations who use auditoriums, cafeterias and kitchens will continue to pay $15, but only $10 if the cafeteria is used alone. Community Park is the school that is chiefly involved, although Valley Road is used as well.

As an outgrowth of questions raised at the July meeting, Dr. McKenna sketched out his philosophy of drop-outs, and told the board that he expected to announce plans this fall which would implement his ideas.

Dr. McKenna believes the best way to meet the problem is to give children strong early primary training so that the basic foundation in reading and arithmetic is as strong as it can be made. Mr. Pearson, commenting on the fact that the Township board had no firm grasp of the actual number of Township children involved in high-school drop-outs, asked Mrs. Richard Schoch of the board's instruction committee to meet with Dr. McKenna and Mrs. Martha Montgomery, school psychologist, to consider the problem.

School bus contracts were renewed. Mrs. Schoch, who is transportation chairman as well as instruction chairman, reminded the board that this is the fourth consecutive year contracts have been renewed without increases in cost.

"MARCH" PLANS GROW
200 Going to Washington. Two hundred people in five buses will leave the shopping center at 6 a.m. sharp next Wednesday, bound for the civil rights "March on Washington."

"Maybe I shouldn't have underestimated the goodwill of Princeton," said Henry Drewry. A key figure in organizing the delegation, he told TOWN

Help Wanted

One hundred volunteers are needed to help pack 80,000 sandwiches in New York City for civil rights demonstrators. The National Council of the Churches of Christ is planning to wrap and box the sandwiches in three shifts next Tuesday in the Inter-Church Center and in Riverside Church.

Princeton assistants are assigned to the third shift, from 12:30 until 3:30 p.m. Volunteers are urged by the Rev. Mr. Kenneth Dannenhauer to call him at WA 4-5498.

TOPICS that public reaction has been "amazing."

"This means something that I have hoped for all along—that there's a sizeable number of people in Princeton who are seriously concerned to the point of being willing to take some direct action."

Round-Up

Feature stories on various aspects of the world of education dominate this Back-to-School issue of TOWN TOPICS. The experiences of a Princeton teacher in the African bush country are reported on page 20 . . . summer-time use of schools for an immediately successful teen-age recreation program is described on page 12 . . . teacher appointments in Borough and Township public schools and the start of the tri-semester plan at Hun are among the numerous other stories.

There's an unusual back-to-school program in force at Princeton Theological Seminary (News of the Church, page 33) and Question of the Week (page 5) delves into the value of "ability grouping" at lower grade levels . . . a report on reading preferences of schoolchildren while on vacation appears on page 18.

Other stories made news, too. The PRR shuttle took an unscheduled, unmanned trip to Plainsboro . . . Princeton's part in next week's "March on Washington" has grown to major proportions . . . the inevitable accidents dotted the traffic picture, and the need for more off-street overnight parking is the subject of one of the letters to Mailbox (page 26).

TOWN TOPICS' forecast of the order of finish in the Ivy Football League heads the sports section (pages 27-30), which also includes football stories on Princeton High, Lawrenceville and Hun . . . irresistible tips on back-to-school buying dot "Its New to Us" (page 7).

Traffic on Cleveland Lane was brought to a standstill one morning last week . . . Nothing moving in either direction for a while . . . The cause? A gigantic turtle juggling himself and all his earthly possessions across the road. Almost as big as a VW but a lot slower.

More on driving, this one not so slow . . . In one recent week the New Jersey Division of Motor Vehicles revoked the licenses of 647 drivers (including out-of-state entrants) . . . About 50% were within the ages of 17 and 25 — although people in that age bracket represent less than 20% of the of the population of driver age.

If you happen to be in the 17-25 age group, therefore, take heed, contemplation, consideration and cooperation are, singly and together, far, far better than revocation.

The rain in Spain falls mainly in the plain while a paucity of precipitation plagues Princeton's parched pampas . . . Five inches of rain in July helped, but the "insoak," that's the name for it, amounted to less than a foot. Consequently, the "outdry," that's not the name for it, took over again but fast.

Contributions of $2 to $50. As the march occurs on a working day, the march committee offered to approach employers for a day-off-with-pay arrangement. "Every one I've approached has been most cooperative — Princeton University, ETS, RCA and others. A lot of the people asked their employers directly. I haven't heard of a turn-down anywhere," Mr. Drewy commented.

Applications and gifts have come from as far away as Metuchen. "A dozen people from Roosevelt are going with us. There are some from Hopewell, Pennington, Lawrence Township, West Windsor—but most are from the Borough and Township."

The committee hoped to field one busload of 40 people, but reserved three buses from the Tiger Line just in case. The flood of applications sent them scurrying to Trenton for more buses. They were turned down because an Atlantic City group had called in ahead of them.

Finally, two air-conditioned buses were chartered from Penn Valley Transit, Pennington. "There's a waiting list now," Mr. Drewy said, "and we're on the brink again. We need to hear right away from anyone who finds he can't go."

The Easter Marchers will include members of church groups, the Friendship Club, the Princeton Housing Group, the League of Women Voters and the YWCA, as well as a sprinkling of young people and . . . Continued on Page 10

MIX 'EM OR MATCH 'EM? The question of how to handle the extra-bright school student is answered by Charles Gentilin (left) and Jake Bartolino. There is no easy solution to this problem, of course, but several respondents (see below) wrestle with it remarkably well.

Question of the Week

Question: In your opinion, should extra-bright school children be grouped together or not?

Where asked: Around town

Reynald St. Denis, Quebec Province, Canada, teacher attending Princeton University summer school: Sure, definitely. If the bright students are stuck with the others, they'll lose their efficiency. We're not using their talents to the maximum. Usually, if they are not required to work as hard as they are able, they get lazy.

Mrs. Thornton Read, 350 Franklin Avenue, engineer, Western Electric: Yes, I think the students would get a lot more out of it. Progress is made by the uncommon man, not the common. It would help these students to develop their potential abilities in the kind of leadership that America really needs. I don't feel, however, that the segregation should be so great that the bright students were separated completely from the others. A student who may be brilliant in mathematics may be only average in other subjects.

Charles Gentilin, Scotch Road, Pennington, owner of Center Radio & TV, Princeton Shopping Center: Yes, definitely. If they are put in a classroom with children who are not as bright, then they are bound to be held back in their development.

Anthony "Jake" Bartolino, 47 Gedney Road, Trenton, TV repairman for Center Radio: It's hard to say. Grouping the extra-bright together could be good and it could be bad. Good in one respect because gifted children would then not be held back. The teacher might otherwise not be able to progress as rapidly as she would like because slower students would feel shunted off. But in another respect, non-grouping would help the slower students. I think they gain something if they are in the same class with brighter students.

Mrs. Leroy E. Purvis, 207 Russell Road, housewife: My question is: Do the bright children gain enough to justify branding the other children as second-rate citizens at an age much too early to brand them as such? You have to convince me that it is worth that much and nobody has been able to yet.

Miss Linda Lesser, 227-A Marshall Street, teacher: I think so. I'm teaching school and I find in my own classes that if you don't have children grouped according to their abilities they suffer, not only the bright student but the less gifted one as well. I feel the group at either extreme needs extra attention and it is almost impossible to give this special attention when you have these different groups in one class. I'm not saying you can't give any extra attention, but you can't give as much as would be desirable.

Mrs. Fannie McAlinden, Hopewell, housewife: I'm in favor of the grouping idea. I think there are a number of students who are capable of doing advanced work, and I don't think they should be held back because of the others. But I think a lot of it depends on age. Some children are easily capable of going into first grade without first attending kindergarten, but I don't know if this is wise in the early grades.

Fred Gallagher, 31 Logan Drive, technical publicist: Yes I feel that, in some public schools — at least the ones I've been familiar with, a bright student isn't sufficiently challenged. When this happens he tends to slide along and lose interest. He doesn't get nearly as much out of school as he could have.

Mrs. John S. Bryan, Princeton Road, Plainsboro: I certainly don't approve of a class which contains fast learners, middle learners and slow learners. I approve of putting the fast learners together because they are going somewhere. If they are grouped with the others, they become discipline problems as a result of not having anything to do. I think the bright child suffers, gets discouraged, and develops bad study habits. Definitely. The middle group is the one that gains the most because the teacher has to gear the class to it.

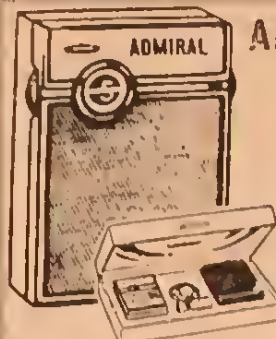

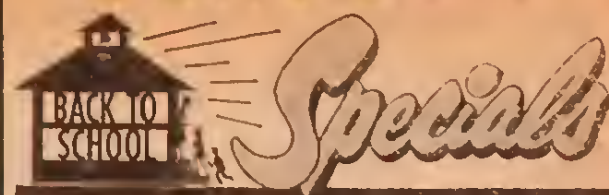

Leighton Newlin, 11, 234 Birch Avenue, seventh grade, Valley Road School: I feel it is right because if they are bright they shouldn't have to be held back. That should be a privilege for them. I have a cousin 11 going into the ninth grade.

Mrs. William A. Lucht, 112 Philip Drive, housewife and former teacher: No I think extra-bright children need a great deal of challenge along their own gifted line, but I still feel they should be grouped with the average student to learn how to live. Throughout his life, the extra-bright student is going to be faced with living among all types of people. He is going to have to be able to understand and get along with all levels of mentalities.

Mrs. Francis Lawrence, Belle Mead, housewife: I think it's a good idea, myself. I feel that, if a child can do more than another child, then he should have the privilege of being able to go as far as he can. I'm in favor of any kind of progressive education.

Mrs. Anthony Scaramozzino, Howe Circle, housewife: I think there are advantages and disadvantages. Certainly, when you have an extra-bright student it is a shame to hold him back. But there are advantages, I feel, in keeping a class mixed. I don't think it hurts any child to hear the answers and opinions from brighter children. I feel he responds to it. He tries to keep up with them. At the same time, it can also be frustrating for the slow learner. So I am of two mind on this. I can see both sides. Perhaps in certain subjects it would be advantageous to separate them, such as in a math class or science class, but when you get to art and languages and the basic subjects, I don't see any harm in keeping them together.

News Of The THEATRES

PLAYHOUSE AND PRINCE
Irma La Douce (now playing) As The New Yorker points out, prostitution is the oldest profession in the world and writing about it is the second-oldest. This time Director Billy Wilder ("The Apartment") and writer L.A.L. Diamond treat the subject with raffish good humor in the film adaption of "Irma" using Jack Lemmon and Shirley MacLaine to tell the story. Wilder has turned the musical show of a few years ago into a vulgar but reasonably funny movie (provided it is ever possible to think of the topic as funny). Credit for most of the humor there is in the show goes to Lemmon and MacLaine—not to the script.

One sample of the dialogue should be enough to show you that the lines with which Lemmon and MacLaine have to work are hardly memorable. MacLaine is showing Lemmon her garret apartment and says that it once belonged to an artist who cut off his ear "Oh," says Mr. Lemmon, "was his name van Gogh?" "No," says Miss MacLaine, "Schwartz."

BUT HE DOESN'T LIKE DECK TENNIS, JOHN: Fletcher Christian (Marlon Brando), center, prevents mutineer John Mills (Richard Harris) from whupping Captain Bligh (Trevor Howard) in this pas-de-trois from "Mutiny on the Bounty," now at the Garden.

With humor at such a level, it's a wonder that either Miss MacLaine or Mr. Lemmon remained on the set. But they did, and, solely because of them "Irma" comes off as a tartly diverting movie.

GARDEN
Mutiny on the Bounty (now playing). Back in 1788 H.M.S. Bounty upped anchor and sailed off on what should have been a pretty routine assignment: to pick up some breadfruit trees at Tahiti and lug them to Jamaica. But, because of the limitless cruelty of the ship's co., Captain Bligh, it turned out to be anything but routine.

Eventually, fed to the scuppers with Bligh's methods for running a taut ship, Officer Fletcher Christian and some of the crew mutinied, kicked Bligh and his buddies off the Bounty in a long-boat, and took the ship to Pitcairn Island. What followed is British admiralty and Hollywood movie history.

In 1935, Clark Gable and Charles Laughton put on a remarkable duel as the noble Mr. Christian and the evil Captain Bligh. The present voyage is taken by Marlon Brando and Trevor Howard, and the result is, in the main, an impressive document of life (and death) on a great sailing ship.

The up-dated account of the Bounty's adventures and misadventures turned out to be, as you probably know, the most expensive cruise ever made. It took nearly $19 million dollars, two directors, 12 scriptwriters and one year to complete; and the well-publicized mutinies of the Brando frequently threatened to scuttle the whole re-investigation into the mutiny on the Bounty.

While you'll probably find that the conflict in the story is not too convincingly stated or portrayed, about three-quarters of the time Bounty sails along at a pretty good clip. If you can take Brando as a kind of nautical Hamlet, and if you can spend three hours in a Garden deck chair without complaining you'll see a spectacular, beautifully photographed seascape, albeit at times slow and overlong.

DRAMA CHOSEN
By Pennington Players. The Pennington Players have chosen "Tiger at the Gates", a drama about the Trojan War, for their October production. Jack Rees has been named producer and Arthur Sharr of Franklin Park has been retained as director.

President John Todd has issued an appeal for interested persons to attend casting try-outs, to be held at 8 p.m., Tuesday, August 27, and Thursday, August 29, at the Playhouse on W. Franklin Avenue, off Route 69. The play has 15 male roles, six others for women, one for a teen-age boy, and one for a ten-year old girl.

SUN-TUES., Aug. 25-27, two fine French films, DEVIL IN THE FLESH and JENNY LAMOUR. When these were made, 10 or 15 years ago, European films were considered suitable only for Europeans or sophisticated metropolitan audiences, and they did not receive the publicity bestowed on La Dolce Vita or Boccaccio 70. However, both are outstanding examples of their genre; both won prizes before prizes were handed out like leis in Honolulu. SUN., Devil at 7; Jenny at 9. MON-TUES., 8:30, Jenny first.

WED., Aug. 28, 7 and 9 p.m., the sweet and delicate LOSS OF INNOCENCE, the story of a young girl's first love, based on Rumer Godden's novel, "The Green-gage Summer." The feature players are Kenneth More and Danielle Darrieux.

IT'S NEW To Us

BOOTED, SPURRED

And Ready to Ride. Mostly, they would probably prefer to go on riding the range in last year's sneakers, but roundup time is coming and the brown toe of summertime has got to get back to boots and saddles. Hulit's, as always, is ready and willing, even if the customers are not. Big this fall for small boys is the bulky look, epitomized by a moe-toe dark brown shoe with white stitching and cushion-crepe sole. Goes on up in size to seniors, too.

A cordovan and black saddle shoe is unbelievably mature, and its side-kick, the sharkskin toe, is unbelievably classic. Incidentally that sharkskin toe has been extended this year to go farther around, almost to ankle bone. Avonite soles give bard wear where you need it most.

Tyroleans for boys, in that honey, tawny glove leather, are bigger than ever in the style books for '63. They are ankle height or standard or 'way up high for snow, and they come in all sizes.

Desert boots will be worn again and again, and so will loafers. From eighth grade up, boys will wear a high instep loafer in grained or smooth leather, with or without the "penny band." A "midnight brown" is the color for this fall, combining black mixed with the darkest kind of chocolate.

Boys who have certain social commitments like dances and parties, and certain restrictions of the budget will be glad to know that Hulit's keeps, just for them, a line of medium-priced shoes — around $11.99—in men's sizes for big young boys.

Moving across the classroom to the girls' side, we find Hulit's stocked with the country-style shoes you're going to wear with the layered, bulky clothes of fall. Camel, spice and deep brown in soft calf-skin have two-eyelet ties, quite new for girls.

There's a suede like the desert boot but lower, and anchored with a crepe sole. Sandler makes it, just touching the ankle bone. Wear these with Hulit's over-the-knee socks, stretch weave in heringbone patterns, high enough to go with kilts and regular skirts and a jaunty change from knee socks.

"Smoke signals" is a rakish western boot — almost. Dipping down at the back of the heel and rising in a curve on each side, it looks like a diminutive cowboy boot, with its antiqued leather, pointed toe and rich, prairie brown.

And then, there are the loafers. Twist for sixty-three: Lujano's Italian loafer with a lira to tuck into the penny slot. Silly, but kind of fun. It's a rich, Italian caramel or black, with squared-off toe. Lujano also makes a flat with a vamp which has been folded like those coin purses, held in this case by a narrow vamp strap.

Domestic loafers are infinite in variety, starting with Bass Weejun classics, roaming over to the "Continental" with its broad natural instep and toe, Sandler's antiqued mahogany, red or black and the consuming decision of whether to buy a loafer with a penny band or without one. How's a girl to decide? Buy a pair of each!

Flats this year star the Moco-Croc-o, a splendidly fake crocodile (really calf, you know) in cranberry, brown or spice, with square throat, stacked flat heel and a stacked walking heel, if you prefer.

Sandler puts patent trim on matching bag and shoes that come in a good bright red that's refreshing in this cranberry-toned fall, forest green or sand. A beanie has a black felt button and black visor.

For campus and the bigger girls, Hulit's shows a deep olive to wear with nylons or the bare leg. It has the squonched little heel that's one of a group called "museum heels" in the shoe trade. "Cindy," another flat, is deep gold with a suede vamp tab.

Little girls will wear the multi-color of "Jelly Bean," combining cranberry, grey and forest green suede, and a companion shoe with grey, turquoise and cranberry in overlapping scales on each side of the eyelets.

PEANUT BUTTER COMING
Jelly on the Side. A lunchbox for $2.66 at Zinder's has a real, honest-to-goodness Thermos bottle inside and a box of Baggies to wrap the peanut butter in. Who could ask for anything more?

The "Barbie" lunchbox is covered with a black plastic whose shiny surface has been enlivened by pictures of Barbie in various fetching attitudes. (Barbie is a doll, in case you are not au courant.)

There's a Lassie lunchbox, too, and "Alvin the Chipmunk" and a terribly professional "Junior Nurse" which probably has iodine inside. Our favorite is a lunching pad — pardon, a launching pad — with gantry and rocket and clouds of alarming smoke and a circular price tag that looks for all the world like the great moon itself.

Coming back from lunch, we find Zinder's in full possession of 300 sheets of two or three-hole notebook paper for 67 cents, and ring binders without number to embrace all 300 sheets. Binders are black vinyl, "leather," or classic blue cloth, and they come with giant two-inch rings or smaller ones, and maybe even with homework all done inside, for all we know.

Book bags are plaid, bonnets (both or a plain spice brown leather, priced about $1.98. A $1.79 bag has a slide rule pencil box affixed to the side, and you can buy the same pencil box by itself, if you wish. Paper Tite has a rolltop pencil case, and there are colored plastic rulers in gold, ruby and emerald, and pencils that are really erasers, and colored pencils even as the rainbow, and a compass for perfect circles and paper book covers that say "Princeton" in black against orange.

There is also a flat folding study stand for 80 cents. Are you ready to roll?

Zinder's, by the way, will give you a free Shaffer's cartridge pen if you buy $5 worth of school supplies. That's good arithmetic for anybody.

SHIFT TO THE A-LINE

All Sizes. A size three shift, so small it looks like a blouse, starts things off this autumn at Allen's, 134 Nassau. The shift and the jumper and, therefore, the A-line, are all over the place in every size from 3 to six and from 7-14. In fact, about three-fourths of the styles go right through the whole size range, that's how pervasive this silhouette is.

That kindergarten size we mentioned above is a smoky blue cotton jumper with a pin-stripe plambay blouse. With it you might have the forest green corduroy jumper with a full dress in red plaid hiding underneath.

"Wincherry," a pleasant euphemism for "maroon," makes a box pleated shift-jumper with a bow shug belt in back and a checked blouse with white collar underneath. It goes right through to size 14. Polly Flinders now carries her smocked dresses through size 12, a new extension of the line this year. These are "older" dresses than the smaller sizes, with an entire waist done in smocking and three-quarter sleeves with flaring ruffs. The fabric is usually cotton.

Older girls will also wear a Black Watch shift, an Oxford

Back to School — Again

Hult's, Zinder's and Allen's — the stores covered in this week's shopping column — have been back-to-school stores on Nassau Street since the parents of today's boys and girls were buying pencils and new shoes.

Hult's, the grandfather of the trio, has been fitting school shoes for 38 years, since 1925. Zinder's stationery store came to Nassau Street with pencil boxes and notebooks in 1944. Allen's, the newcomer in the group, has been selling boys' shirts and little girls' pinaflores and the inevitable blue gym suits since 1949.

All three stores are family enterprises, owned and operated by people who live in Princeton, into the second generation in the case of Zinder's and Hult's. "Allen," of course, is not a family name, but the name of the oldest son of Murray Ahelson, owner of the shop.

cloth shift in brilliant red with white stitching, and a prim shirtwaist of deep, dungaree blue.

Prints are popular on autumn sweaters, and one especially nice one has autumn leaves in autumn colors on a snowflake white background. A Shaker sweater in bright red has broad black bands escorting the zipper down the front, and finishing off neck and sleeve. Creamy wool, knit in garter stitch, makes a cardigan trimmed in velvety black, even to the elbow patches.

For After-Three, Allen's shows stretch pants and knit shirt sets in all sizes, all prints, all solid colors, including the Danish stretch slacks for older girls in cranberry, Mayfair blue and standard navy-black-red.

And last of all — gym suits, a new one every year, yet always the same. Priced at $3.50 and $4.98. Strictly Regulation.

Boys who shop at Allen's will find the elbow patch on almost every tweed jacket. It's "in" for fall, that out-at-elbows look. Slacks and polos go up to size 20 for boys, and just in case the weather forgets it's fall, Allen's has Bermuda length shorts for boys in dark fall shades for sunny, hot October days.

"PAINT YOUR WAGON"

At Music Circus, An early musical by Lerner and Loewe, "Paint Your Wagon," will complete its run at Lambertville's Music Circus Sunday, to be followed by "The Pajama Game" Tuesday. Robert Turf directs "Paint Your Wagon," set during the gold rush period in California.

The cast includes Norman Atkins, Liza Stuart, Don Grille, Travis Hudson, and Lynne Churnay. Mr. Atkins, a haritone with the New York City Center and NBC-TV Opera, takes the role of Ben Rumson, played on Broadway by James Burton. Miss Stuart plays his daughter, Jennifer. She was "The Girl" in over 300 performances of "The Fantasticks," off Broadway.

The musical numbers are staged by Edward Earle, with musical direction by Art Frank Stuart Bishop designed the sets. Among "Paint Your Wagon's" tunes are "Wand'rin' Star," "I Talk to the Trees," "They Call the Wind Maria," "I Still See Elisa" and "Whoop-It-Away."

Maynard Ferguson will be the feature of the Jazz Specials series this Monday at 8:30. Curtain time for the regular musical shows is 8:30, with two performances on Saturday at 6 and 8:30.

COURT IN THEATRE

For Ayn Rand Thriller, "Night of January 16th," a courtroom drama by Ayn Rand, will run through Saturday, August 31, at Bucks County Playhouse, New Hope. The jury for the play, set in New York's financial world, is chosen from the audience at each performance, and the play ends according to the verdict. The theatre is set as an actual courtroom, with the audience rising when the judge enters and witnesses entering from the auditorium. The curtain is up when the play begins. Harvey Medlinsky directs Jerome Cowan and Jack Pyle, the district attorney and defense attorney, respectively.

The final offering of the season will be "King of Hearts," starring Henry Morgan. The show will open Monday, September 2, for a two-week engagement. A Sunday evening performance will be given on the 8th in lieu of the usual Monday show on the 9th. Matinees are scheduled for Wednesdays and Saturdays at 2 p.m.

The League of Women Voters' marchers are Mrs. Bernard Aronson, Mrs. Rowan Bonne, Mrs. Glen Treves and Mrs. Stanley Phshaw. The YWCA has urged all interested members to join in.

As plans now stand, the buses will leave the parking lot on the Harrison Street side of Bambergers at 6 a.m. (Marchers are to be there at 5:30 a.m.) They are asked to bring sandwiches for lunch and supper, as well as a thermos of something to drink. A free baby sitting service will be maintained at the Princeton Nursery School, 78 Leigh Avenue, from 5:30 a.m. until 8:30 p.m. when the demonstrators are expected to return.

Motivators. The executive committee of the Princeton Group for Human Rights began working towards the march two weeks ago. Present at the initial session were Professor Malcolm Diamond of the Princeton University Department of Religion, the Rev. Albert S. Tyson Jr., pastor of Mt. Pisgah A.M.E. Church; Leighdon Laughlin, Thomas Caldwell, Mrs. Alfred Kargenay, Mrs. Emma Epps, Mrs. Elizabeth Chandler, Irving Newlin, Mrs. Geraldine Boone and Mr. Drowry.

As plans formed, the group expanded to include Mrs. Jere Bruner, Mrs. Richard I. Bergman, Mrs. Floyd Campbell, Mrs. Lester V. Chandler, Mrs. E. Harris Harbison, Prof. and Mrs. Ernest A. Lynton, Mr. and Mrs. Simon F. Moss, the Rev. Charles Newbery, Prof. Robert R. Palmer, Henry Pannell, and the Rev. Rowland Cox.

Inquiries concerning the demonstration are referred to Mr. Drowry, WA 1-7949, Professor Diamond, WA 1-7047, Thomas Caldwell, WA 4-3581 and Mrs. Elizabeth Chandler, WA 4-5449. Information about the baby sitting service may be obtained from Mrs. Ernest A. Lynton, WA 4-4830.

additional incentive such as more outside reading or perhaps they could pursue a project in science or math outside the class to supplement what they have learned in the classroom. Otherwise, they get bored and are not working up to their potential, important things to avoid. A lot would depend on how large the school system is, but I feel that the extra-bright child needs to be encouraged to pursue his own interests, something most bright children will do anyway. This is like having your cake and eating it too. The bright child is still progressing, yet he is still a member of the same class. I think this is good for elementary children. When you reach the junior and senior high level, however, I believe in homogeneous grouping. I think by this time a parent might not be so opposed, especially when, by this time, a student has a choice in his courses. When there is an alternate choice, I don't think a parent would be so upset.

COLLEGE SESSION AIDED

By 27 PHS Students. Twenty-seven modern language students at Princeton High School played an important part in Princeton University's Summer Institute for Secondary School Teachers of French and German, according to Prof. Andre Maman, director of the institute and a member of the University's Department of Romance Languages and Literatures. The 27 volunteers served as members of demonstration classes in French and German which met daily throughout the seven-week session of the institute.

The course of study and the new teaching techniques used in these demonstration classes emphasized the spoken language. Frank Soda, chairman of the high school's Modern mixed. It's a problem I know a lot of mothers who just don't know how to feel about this.

Walter Sawyer, Edinburg, clerk for Acme Market, Princeton Shopping Center: Yes, I think if a child is extra-smart he should be separated from the rest of the class. I think he should have the opportunity of being able to proceed at his own rate and being able to learn as much as he can.

Mrs. Durwood Walters, 2 Harrison Lane, Princeton Junction, housewife: Yes, I think they should be separated. I think a child would get bored if he had to sit and listen to something he already knew. And, being bored, he might tend to do something he ordinarily shouldn't be doing — day dreaming and so on.

Mrs. Jo Lawson, 226-C Harrison Street, architect: I think for some special periods during the day the extra-bright students could be taken outside the normal classroom. I think this is good. They need these demonstration sessions,

the use of recently developed teaching methods and audio-

Following each class demon-

such teaching problems as the development of reading and speaking abilities, the interpretation of French or German civilization through the lan-merits of pattern drills and traditional grammar exercises.

Mr. Soda stated that the stu-

through their participation, had also had the opportunity to add to their own skills in

STUART SCHOOL TO OPEN
New Day School for Girls.
September 18 has been set as the opening date for the new Stuart Country Day School of the Sacred Heart. Located on a 55-acre site just off The Great Road, the school will have classes for girls from preschool through tenth grade. It was announced this week, with grades 11 and 12 to be added in 1964 and 1965 successively.

Faculty appointments at the Stuart School are now being completed. The Rev. Mother Agnes Barry, Superior Vicar of the Washington Vicariate, will be the school's superior.
Headmistress is Mother Joan Kirby.

The Rev. Mother Barry and the staff are planning an open house early in the school year to welcome parents and other friends from the Princeton community. The curriculum for four years preceding college is designed to provide the foundation for a broad and liberal Christian education.

The Society of the Sacred Heart conducts 186 boarding schools, training schools and colleges in 34 countries with a total enrollment of some 75,000 students.

the Township should register at Princeton High School.

To be eligible for enrollment in kindergarten, a child must reach his fifth birthday by October 15, and to be eligible for the first grade, his sixth birthday by the same date. A birth certificate or other documentary proof of age must be presented. In case of transfer from another school district, it will be necessary to present a transfer card and last year's report card for grade placement.

All pupils must show proof of having received a DPT vaccination, and have had at least three polio inoculations. School will open at 8:45 a.m. on Thursday, September 5.

PROGRAM SUCCEEDS

In Summer Recreation. Princeton teen-agers saw light at the end of the tunnel this summer.

For the first time, they had a chance to participate in a community-wide recreation program, "unstructured" — as the sociologists like to say — informal, free of charge, come-as-you-are.

And did they take this chance?

"We think we reached about a thousand kids, maybe more," says Larry Ivins, director. "We're going to meet soon to make plans for next summer, and we hope to reach even more in '64."

The nine-week program, just ended, started with a sudden bang. Early in June, Mrs. Richard Schoch of the Council of Community Services, called together Mrs. D. Barton Stevens of the Borough PTA, Walter Sorg of the YMCA and Ellis J. Willard of the Playgrounds Committee to consider the problem presented by the lack of recreation for teen-agers in Princeton.

"Sure, we have to plan for the future, but what are we going to do for these teen-agers right now, THIS summer?" demanded Mrs. Stevens. And so the program came into being.

LARRY IVINS AS COACH: Ricky Cunningham takes a pointer or two from Larry Ivins, Borough science teacher who ran the first Summer Recreation Program of the Council of Community Services. The program, successfully concluded this week after a nine-week engagement, will be back again next summer. Story this page. (Staff Photo)

Keep It Relaxed. Larry Ivins, science teacher at Witherspoon School and director of the Harrison Street playground, was hired as director for the new program. A young athlete with six years of Witherspoon students and a Saturday boys' club behind him, he not only knew almost every boy and girl who turned up, he had in addition a vital ingredient: an almost intuitive empathy with teen-agers and a dedicated enthusiasm for their welfare.

"Let's keep the program relaxed," he suggested, "and let's have it Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights — it's the end of the week when they begin to get restless."

Under Mr. Ivins' direction, the program began to take on its final shape: Wednesday night basketball tournaments at Harrison Street playground, Thursday night informal games at Community Park School, Friday night softball and baseball and dancing in the high school gym.

The budget was pieced together from several sources. The Princeton United Community Fund contributed $400 to cover Mr. Ivins' salary and equipment. The Township Recreation Commission chipped in $150 for basketball coaches at Harrison Street on Wednesday nights. Frank Clark of the YMCA gave $100 of "Y" money toward the rental of Community Park School and Princeton High School. (And the Playgrounds Committee let Mr. Ivins keep a precious set of keys to its equipment cupboards.)

How Many Will Come? "Even if we get only ten kids, it's worth it," Mr. Ivins told the committee, but he needn't have worried.

With almost no advance publicity, the first dance drew over 20 teen-agers. The next Friday there were 44. The following Friday there were 60.

and on the biggest night of all, there were 83.

The sports program grew proportionately. The committee had purposely mapped out locations so that young people would come from all over town to each one, and this is indeed what happened.

From Riverside and John Street, from Shadybrook and Hun Road, from Maclean and Laurel Circle, they biked or walked to Harrison Street to practice for those basketball tournaments. They turned up at Community Park in the warm summer twilight to play endless games of ping-pong until it became so dark that the table had to be moved to catch the light that poured out of the open gym door. Inside the gym, of course, there was basketball, played with tension and speed and appalling endurance by 11th and 12th grade boys.

Can We Really Play? At first, these boys were skeptical. "You mean the gym will really be open so we can play?" When they found that it was indeed open, they came on the stroke of 7 p.m. when the doors were unlocked and they played basketball until curfew at 10, even on nights when heat and humidity combined to make basketball an insane anachronism.

About 40 boys might show up in the course of an evening to try for the baskets. "What would they be doing to let off all this steam if we didn't have this program?" Mr. Ivins asked rhetorically one evening.

On Wednesdays, right after supper, the Harrison Street bleachers would begin to fill up as adults and teen-agers came to watch the really first-rate basketball played in the formal tournament Mr. Ivins set up. Not all of these spectalors were relatives of the players, either; they came to see a good game well played, and many of them told Mr. Ivins what a wonderful thing he had done for these boys.

It was, largely, a boys program. Girls' kickball and softball games were scheduled, and some girls played ping-pong, but mostly the girls preferred to sit and watch the boys. And to catch them afterwards for dancing.

Dances were casual, but chaperoned. There were no rules about dress, no rules about coming and going.
 Sometimes boys and girls would sit out on the gym steps and talk about sports and school, and now and then they would drift inside to dance, and drift back out again. There were soft drinks. The only rule everybody had to go in and out by one door.

Chaperones, a constant plague to the old Teen Canteen, were no problem at all.
 Mrs. Stevens, appointed chairman of the group, had an active list of more than 40 adults
 from all over Princeton.

And next year? If this year's program was successful with only a couple of weeks' preparation, next year's should be a whopper — that's the way Mr. Ivins feels about it. The committee just hopes it can get Mr. Ivins back again to run the show.

These are the adult volunteers who came, some of them
 week after week, to chaperone, to coach and to help in any way they could:

Mrs. Carolyn Adams, Oakes
 Ames, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. John Bee-ker, Mr. and Mrs. W. W.

Register for Referendum

New voters in the Borough must register by Thursday, September 5, in order to vote on the school bond referendum October 15. The clerk's office at Borough Hall, 50 Stockton Street, will be open from 9 to 4 until the end of the month, and from 9 to 5 beginning Tuesday, September 3.

The special election will be held on the proposed new elementary school on Walnut Lane, opposite the High School. It would replace the Nassau Street and Witherspoon Schools, at a cost of approximately $25 million. The bond issue is set at $1,278,000.

NEW YEAR, NEW FACES

21 Join Borough Schools.
 Two dozen new teachers will join the Borough school system
 next month, ending a talent
 search by Superintendent Chester A. Stroup which began last January.

The newcomers, also screened by school principals and department heads, include five graduates of Princeton High School and a gym teacher who's qualified to teach French if she wants to. There are two former football stars and a varsity soccer player on the roster, an Air Force colonel and a Princeton resident who turned to teaching late in life.

"The Old Grads." The PHS
 graduates include John Houlenville, Class of 1949, who achieved scholastic honors as well as acclaim as a 148-lb.
 fullback. He graduated from Princeton University, Class of 1953, and from University of Pennsylvania Law School in 1956.

After military service and a year spent practicing law, he turned to teaching. He studied at Rutgers and taught math at the Plainsboro School. He will be in high school math department and probably will assist in coaching.

Miss Carol Jones of Hopewell who graduated in 1958 with high honors, will teach French at the Witherspoon School. She received her BA magna cum laude from Dickenson College and her master's at Middlebury. For the past year she has been studying at the University of Paris under a Fulbright scholarship.

Joseph Carlucci, another Hopewell resident, will teach biology and general science at the high school. A 1956 graduate of PHS, he received his

Adult School to Start

The Princeton Adult School will begin its 22nd season on Thursday, September 26, at Princeton High School. Thirty-one courses will be included in the curriculum ranging from a series on art and sculpture to a survey of the new mathematics.

Other courses such as bridge, sewing, typing, exercise, all of the language courses and others will again be offered. Open House, the only opportunity for "in person" registration, will be held on Thursday evening, September 19, from 8 to 9:30 in the high school cafeteria. Prospective students may meet the faculty and members of the Adult School committee at the time.

A full description of the curriculum and a mail registration blank will appear in TOWN TOPICS on September 12.

bachelor's and master's degrees from the State University at Geneseo, N.Y., and has done additional work at the University of Rochester. He is the son of Dr. A.M. Carlucci, of the Neuro-Psychiatric Institute.

Miss Elizabeth E. Schmidt, who will teach art at Witherspoon and at the high school, attended all three Princeton Borough schools. The daughter of an artist, she graduated with academic honors in June from Montclair State College, Her practice teaching has been done in the Borough.

The new second grade teacher, Miss Marguerite Allison, is a member of the class of 1958. She received her BA from Parsons' College and has been teaching at Brookview Elementary School, Morrisville, Pa., where she has participated in experimental work with "Bridges in arithmetic," a modern math program for younger children.

Late Comer, One of the newcomers is also a late comer. Mrs. Ida Horne Delany of 40 Hawthorne Avenue, is a graduate of George Washington University with a master's from N.Y.U. She decided to enter teaching a few years ago. She has studied at the University of Freiburg, Germany, and recently completed the education course requirements at Rutgers.

For the past three years, Mrs. Delany taught English and remedial reading at South Brunswick High School. Three of her children attended Witherspoon School, so Mrs. Delany will have the parent's viewpoint in mind, as she guides her English classes at Witherspoon.

Also at Witherspoon will be Robert C. Parsons of Lambertville, who will teach sixth grade, replacing Mrs. Ruth Mortensen. He received his

Mrs. Bernice Rydell of Princeton will teach senior office practice. A graduate of Trenton State, with a distinguished graduate school record at Rutgers, she received her teaching experience at Williamsstown High and Trenton State.

George J. Thompson 3d of Ithaca, N.Y., will teach English. A graduate of Colgate this past June, he was a member of the varsity tennis, swimming and soccer teams. He will assist with soccer coaching.

Miss Claire Blagini of North Plainfield will join the Spanish Department. She received her BA from Douglass in 1957 and MA from Rutgers in June, with further study during the summers at Guadalajara, Mexico, Temple University and Yale. During the past six years she taught at Lakewood High and Watchung Hills Regional High.

English, and possibly French, will be taught by Miss Jean Ann Donehue of West Lafayette, Ind. She has a BA from the University of Pittsburgh and MA from Purdue. Her two-and-one-half years of teaching experience have been at the high school and college levels.

Miss Helle Thompson of Greenwich, Conn., will teach girls' physical education. A French major at Middlebury, where her activities ranged from varsity tennis and hockey to mountain climbing and serving as Carnival Ball chairman, she received her MA from Springfield and has travelled in France.

"Seminary Wife." Mrs. Arlene Loder, wife of the Rev. Dr. James E. Loder of Princeton Seminary, will teach English. She received her BA from Whitworth College and has done graduate study at Harvard.

Mrs. Jane S. Jacobs, a graduate of Smith College, will also teach English. The wife of Dr. William P. Jacobs, professor of biology at Princeton University, she began substitute teaching at the high school in January.

Miss Henriette Abenmoha, a graduate of Wilkes College, will join the French teaching staff. She attended the Ecole Normale in Paris for a year, received her MA in French from Rutgers and is now writing her PhD thesis. Upon the death of Miss Dorothy Gaskell in February, Miss Abenmoha joined the staff on a substitute basis.

Also teaching French will be Miss Barbara Ann Rousch of Haddon, Conn., an honors graduate of Mt. Holyoke. She has studied at the University of Paris and at Harvard.

New English teachers include Edward J. Buckley of East Orange, and Miss Carol M. Hyde. Mr. Buckley is a graduate of Kings College, has completed 42 post graduate credits at Seton Hall, Montclair and Rutgers. He taught for 7 years in the Medford (N.J.) High School. Miss Hyde change teacher, Mlle. Nicole Suzanne of Paris, France, who will teach French in the Community Park School.

Mrs. Kathryn Michael, wife of Princeton High School principal Kenneth Michael, will be teaching first grade at Community Park. A graduate of the University of Illinois, she has 14 years' experience, spending last year in the Ewing Township School System.

Also at Community Park will be Mrs. Bernice "Bani" Shorter as "enrichment" teacher. Mrs. Shorter, who is an author of children's books as well as a teacher, began an enrichment program in Princeton last summer when she directed the Public Library's successful "Asian Summer" story-telling program in the playgrounds. She is a graduate of Colby and has a master's degree from Haverford.

Mrs. Elaine Solomon, wife of former PTA President Robert J. Solomon and an active PTA member herself, will join the staff at Valley Road as an English teacher. The mother of three children now in the Township schools, she is a graduate of Brooklyn College.

Can't Read? Johnny Reads All the Time!

Upside down in a chair with feet hooked over the back and elbows propped on the floor, Princeton's boys and girls read 8,974 books in July.

That's the check-out figure for the children's department of the public library. It's about 1,000 more than the July, 1962 figure, according to Miss Patricia Kirschkesnen, children's librarian, and it doesn't even count the books bought at Male's Book Shop and the University Store.

They read everything. Boys read about dogs and girls read about horses, and shops sell countless 35-cent paperbacks on these subjects. They buy crossword puzzle books and every possible kind of math puzzle book.

"Henry Huggins" and Laura Ingalls Wilder's "Little House" books are over-riding favorites at the library and both stores. And the classics, too: Conan Doyle's "Lost World" and Jules Verne, "White Fang" and "National Velvet," "Charlotte's Web" and "Dr. Doolittle."

The library checks out science fiction to young boys as fast as the books come in, ("Danny Dunn" in particular) and countless biographies to everybody, boys and girls.

Male's reports a busy season with Mark Twain, who has apparently vanished from school reading lists. The shop meets a lot of teen-agers who are just discovering "Huck Finn" and "Tom Sawyer."

"Lord of the Flies" is still being devoured by teen-age readers. They read world affairs, too, especially John Hersey's "Hiroshima," Dean Ernest Gordon's "Thru the Valley of the Kwai" and anything else about World War II.

Miss Kirschkesnen says Princeton children read more British authors than other children do, and quantities of books about other countries, probably because Princeton is a "travelling town."

In summertime, children go relentlessly down the reading lists, and both book shops are most impressed with the high quality, the imagination and the contemporary slant of the 1963 reading list.

Who says "Johnny Can't Read?"

Joan Mathison of Montgomery, Ala., (primary), B.S. Auburn.

Valley Road. Newcomers are Ralph Heyman of Chatham, N.J. (mathematics and social studies) B.S. University of Pennsylvania, M.A. New York University; Miss Ingrid Lohminger of Rockaway, (French), Montclair State College.

Community Park. New teachers are Miss Bonnie Brown of Trenton, N.J. (physical education), A.B. - Trenton State College; Miss Evelyn Goodman of New York City (primary), B.S. City College of New York; Mrs. Janice Hagood of 22 Cedar Lane (intermediate) B.S. Trenton State College; Mrs. Barbara Mank of Towson, Md., (intermediate), A.B. Carleton College and MAT Program at Goucher College; Mrs. Sandra Tarr of Princeton (sixth team) A.B. University of Redlands; Mrs. June Trader of Princeton (sixth team) A.B. Rutgers; and Mrs. Patricia Van Ness of Trenton (first grade) B.S. Trenton State College.

At Riverside School, Mrs. Faith Pragoff of Odessa, Del., will join the primary staff. A graduate of the University of Delaware, she has taught school for one year. Mrs. Margaret Pazdan of Princeton, a graduate of Mercer Hospital, will join the Township Schools' staff as school nurse at Valley Road.

Other changes. Eugene R. Biringer has been named principal of Community Park School. A graduate of Rutgers, where he has done graduate work, Mr. Biringer has served as an administrator and teacher in Union Township, East Brunswick and Metuchen Public Schools.

DROPOUTS IN DAKAR
Princeton Woman Helps
You're African children and one under tree hit by a Princeton teacher Mr.
David Hapgood. She has returned after two years in Senegal. A V. A. member since 1951, she has been a teacher in a four-grade class at Community Park School.

In Dakar, Senegal, Mr. Hapgood taught French to 30 native Senegalese, all dropouts from high school. Her sons, David and Bruce, enrolled for a year in Dakar technical high school or lycee because "we wanted them to know Africans." Her husband, a New York Times Journalist, researched rural development in the French-speaking nation, under a grant from the Institute of World Affairs.

"Mixed Up," Blotie and pretty Mr. Hapgood sat curled up in a chair on her porch at 22 Cedar Lane and discussed the bewildering crosscurrents which buffet the African schooling.

"Ghana is the most confused," she said in her gentle voice. "There has been a great influx of teachers—Russians, Czechs, Yugoslavs, Vietnamese, Chinese, Bulgarians, Americans. The poor children are getting a very mixed up education."

"In Dakar, I had to teach English according to the PROGRESS IN SENEGAL: "We wanted to see the bush school and the hospital," says Mrs. David Hapgood, "but this region director showed us the country villa they were building for the president." (Story, this page.)

French system—which is all the courses were flexible translation and very little conversation. The men really wanted to speak English, but I had to teach towards the test they would have to take. The baccalaureate is very tough but if they pass, it opens all sorts of doors. Most in the group before mine failed it."

Her dropouts ranged in age from 25 to 40. "There was a wide range in intelligence." They met two nights a week for 1½ hours. "And often somebody would fall asleep. My sons said that the boys in their classes were always dropping off. There is so much malaria in Africa. . . . They eat almost no protein foods. Health is a great problem."

Her students had a great animosity about the United States, stimulated by the transistor radios, which the Hapgoods noticed everywhere, "even in the deepest bush and the desert of Mauritania." Mrs. Hapgood had to field such questions as: "Is it true the blacks are not well viewed in the U.S.?" "Are there Moslems and mosques?" and endless queries about jazz musicians, movie stars and rock and roll singers.

Free, But . . . At the technical lycee, where her 15-year-olds made the basketball team

French system—which is all the courses were flexible translation and very little conversation. The men really wanted to speak English, but I had to teach towards the test they would have to take. The baccalaureate is very tough but if they pass, it opens all sorts of doors. Most in the group before mine failed it."

"This is the French system. The technical and classical lycees are free as long as you pass—which isn't easy. The university is half empty. Scholarships can be had if you can pass the baccalaureate—which is very, very difficult."

The odds in favor of dropouts are enormous, Mrs. Hapgood says. "Formal education is completely new. They are taught in a foreign language (French) and must know English to pass the lycee examination."

"My sons' classmates had to know Arabic in order to read the Koran, as well as the unwritten languages of the three or four neighboring tribes. The children have long distances to go to school; there is no electricity in their homes for nighttime studying; their health is poor. And the children are often taken out of school by their parents."

In the interior, or bush country, Mrs. Hapgood and her husband visited countless fly-covered adobe schools. "Books and paper are hard to get, but they manage to have schools everywhere. We saw a 17-year-old boy in the bush teaching 60 children."

"We found lots of people who had learned to read and write—and had forgotten it. They'd had no use for their learning."

Her blue-green eyes reflective, she commented, "Some educators are trying to Africanize the schools, putting stress on more practical training. But many Africans don't agree with the technical lycee."

"As they see it, it doesn't lead to a government job. They're motivated in this direction because they've seen the government officials riding around in big cars, living in big houses. . . . The area where the officials live in Dakar is 'derally called the 'Plateau'."

She noted that the Africans want the same education that the French in France are getting. "They don't want anything 'inferior,' as they call it. Perhaps practical education was handled badly in the beginning."

The early school directors often abused the agriculture program, using the children to till their own gardens. Consequently, it has a bad association in the African mind."

"We have our reservations about what the Peace Corps can do, and so did they after a while."

"It is more what Africa does for the Peace Corps. We met AID members in rural areas. Unfortunately both the Americans and Communists have brought in machines — which are left to rust. They should have brought in an improved hoe."

She feels that the "Animation" program is more basic. Selected young men called "animators" are taken from a village to learn about community needs. Little plays are put on to dramatize living conditions, health measures, and so on.

Then they are taken to another village and asked, "What do you think this village needs?" Finally, the animators are returned to their own village to work with the chief and others on improvements."

Free classes are held in Dakar at a social center, known as the "Foyer." Here Mrs. Hapgood met with her class in drop-outs and also worked with a group of illiterate housewives who wanted to educate themselves in order to keep up with their husbands. "We used to talk over problems . . . such as polygamy — which the women all oppose. They say, 'why should I save money? My husband would just buy another wife.'"

Mrs. Hapgood will be returning to a key grade in school. The fourth grade, according to School Superintendent John McKenna, is where a student first starts slipping back in discouragement. Her leave of absence in Africa has added to her resourcefulness in reaching the child who is working against odds.

POEMS FOR THE YOUNG

Chosen By P. H. S. The rhythm and the beat and the sweet, silent thought of poetry have been bound together for young readers in a new anthology, "Poems for Pleasure," selected by the students of Princeton High School and assembled by Herman M. Ward.

It's a paperback, designed to appeal to young budgets as well as young minds, and it costs $1.50.

Mr. Ward, consultant to the English department at the high school, gathered a group of 18 tenth-graders in his living room one evening. With coke to wet the whistle, the 18 boys and girls read poetry from half past seven to half past ten, and as they listened and read, they voted on the poems they liked best.

"I know I'm not supposed to like 'Little Boy Blue' but I do," said one girl. So "Little Boy Blue" appears in "Poems for Pleasure" (page 35) because its verses gave pleasure to the girl who read them.

Mr. Ward believes that literary taste cannot be hurried. "If a reader sincerely prefers 'When the Frost Is On the Punkin' to Keats' 'Ode to Autumn,' " Mr. Ward says, "there is nothing to be gained by deriding his choice; in fact, something may be lost."

The editor then recalls his own youth, when he liked James Whitcomb Riley's frost on the punkin so much that he memorized it on his own. "We should realize," he says, "that some poems seem to 'live' just for young people, and then are heard no more."

Here's What I Like. Well, what do Princeton high school boys and girls like in the way of poetry?

They have a special fond-

HYACINTHS AND BISCUITS: "Somebody — it was probably Carl Sandburg — once defined poetry as the synthesis of hyacinths and biscuits. Dr. Herman Ward (above) goes Sandburg one better and shows that a whole anthology of poetry can synthesize the beautiful and the mundane. Dr. Ward's anthology, selected by students at Princeton High School, is described in a story on this page. (Staff Photo)

ness for A. E. Housman, as one might guess.

"Oh, when I was
in love with you,
Then I was
clean and brave,
And miles around
the wonder grew How well I did believe.
And now the I may passes by,
And nothing
will remain,
And miles around
they'll say that I Am quite myself again."

Those are lines that any adolescent can read and smile at and appreciate from his own experience.

They like ballads, too, boys do especially, if those in "Poems for Pleasure" are any indication. Here's Kipling's "Danny Deever" and "Gunga Din" and "Casey Jones," mounted to the cabin, Casey Jones, with his orders in his hand.

"John Henry told his Captain before I let that steam drill beat me down, I'll die with a hammer in my hand." "I must go down to the seas again, to the lonely sea and the sky . . ." and "Into the jaws of Death, into the mouth of Hell, Rode the six hundred."

Poems for Dipping. Mr. Ward has designed his little book for pick-up reading, two or three poems at a time. For this reason, he has mixed and matched apparently at random, but actually with both rhyme and reason.

One right after the other, he lines up "Drink to me only with thine Eyes," "Hog butcher for the world," selections from the Rubaiyat, "In Flanders Fields" and "The Highwayman." In each little package of verse, there is usually a light one with a smile at the end of the line. And, of course, there is always the chance that the boy who finishes "Gunga Din" will, out of sheer momentum, go right on and read Millay's "Renaissance."

Some of the poems are inspirational, some provide unintentional comment on a teen-ager's way of life. Here is Shakespeare's "Crabbed age and youth cannot live together, youth is full of pleasure, age is full of care."

And Ogden Nash: "It seems to be very liking to people at work to see other people not working, so they tell you that work is wonderful medicine—just look at Firestone and Ford and Edison."

To Stir the Heart, Kipling's "If," Denley's "Invictus," Whitman's "When I Heard the Learned Astronomer," are verses that seem to have a message for young people. Curiously, the boys and girls have included those lines of Wordsworth that say so much to an adult mind, but seem oddly care-worn to appeal to the young.

"The world is too much with us, late and soon,

"Getting and spending, we lay waste our powers."

Perhaps youth is almost as full of care as crabbed age!

At the end of his anthology, Mr. Ward has set aside a brief section called "Poems for a Second Look," those lines that are rough going and demand more than one quick reading.

"They should be tried occasionally," is the editor's hopeful comment.

In this section there is Keats' "One First Looking Into Chapman's Homer" and Randall Jarrell "The Death of the Bull Turret Gunner," William Blake ("The Tiger"), Dylan Thomas ("The Force That Through the Green Fuse Drives") and Shakespeare ("When to the Sessions of Sweet Silent Thought.")

The poems were chosen by students in the college preparatory course at the high school, but they were also submitted to two 11th grade commercial classes and to one 11th grade class of below-average general students. The performances were almost exactly the same.

A teen-age reader — at least, Dr. Ward hopes she is a reader — of his anthology is a young granddaughter of the poet William Butler Yeats.

Dr. Ward, who knows the Yeats family, gave the girl a copy of his anthology although she assured him that, in spite of her ancestry, she did not like poetry.

Later, Dr. Ward asked her mother how the book had been received. "She hasn't said a word about it," the mother said, "but it's still on her bedside table, and nothing ever stays there unless it's being read."

GOING DOWN: A portion of Princeton University's Marquand Art Library, packed in cardboard boxes, rides down an outside elevator along with Douglas Kerr, of 50 Allison Road, a summer-time mover with Bollrens. Bollrens has taken over the job of transporting some 66,000 volumes from the shelves of the Marquand Library in McCormick Hall to a temporary home on Floor B of Firestone Library. The art library will be set up there while a new addition is made to McCormick Hall, then moved into the new McCormick addition in approximately two years. The eight men on the job under the direction of Warren Froelich Jr. expect to complete the transfer in about three weeks. (Staff Photo)

NEW ADDITION READY

At Benjamin Franklin School. The new addition to Lawrence Township's Benjamin Franklin Elementary School on the Princeton Pike will be ready for students when they return to school this September. The construction of the eight-room addition will provide more classroom space and eliminate the overcrowding in other elementary schools in the township. The number of pupils registered at the school will have grown to approximately 610 by September 1.

The addition will include six regular classrooms, a music classroom, a library, conference-work room and additional —Continued from Page 21

Little Laughter, No Tears.
To the Editor of Town Topics:
"Sparrows Can't Sing" was a big mistake. Your paper said it was "both hilarious and poignantly touching."
The night I saw it the audience was moved to laughter about five times. If any tears were shed, I suspect they were tears of regret at the price of admission which by that time was gone forever.

WILLIAM BROWER
628 Ewing Street

Editor's Note: TOWN TOPICS' reviewer, like any critic who writes to be read, not to achieve wholehearted agreement, reports that "Sparrows" was "the kind of picture one either liked immensely or not at all."

More All-Night Parking Asked.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

For years people living in the center of Princeton have depended upon the municipally owned "Palmer Yard" for all night parking. The lot, containing 30 spaces, has generally been filled almost to capacity. In fact, many nights have found every available space occupied.

Recently the construction of the new building at the corner of Nassau Street and Palmer Square East has seen 11 of the 30 parking places taken over as space for construction supplies. This leaves at least 11 people to find other places for their cars.

For two nights, with the Palmer Yard full, I parked in the "Palmer - Witherspoon Yard" and it was tolerated. On the third night, I called the Borough police and was told I couldn't park there again.

Are sky hooks the answer? This seems to be the official reply of the Princeton Police Department.

The central area of town contains valuable business land. It is understandable that it is not overendowed with private parking facilities.

TEN THOUSAND IN GREEN: Green stamps, that is. The first couple to receive 10,000 Green Stamps free for buying a car during a 10-day new-car sale offered by the Turney Motor Company are Bryan V. Moore (second from left) 30 Quarry Street, attorney, and his wife, Richard Appleby, owner of Turney Motors, presents the stamps to Mrs. Moore. At left, is Martin Reef, sales manager. (Staff Photo)

In this same area, however, are three public parking yards. Why not make use of them when they are needed — both day and night? Certain sections of the Witherspoon Yard are well-lighted and could be patrolled easily from the street. The whole lot is not needed, but some of it is — immediately.

The Palmer Yard is not scheduled to be returned to its original capacity, although some of the spaces will be put back. This will be after the construction, perhaps a year or more. With the situation as bad as it is now, during the summer when many people are out of town, it is obvious that after Labor Day it will grow progressively worse.

The fact that the new Park Place parking yard and the one at the corner of University Place and Mercer Street are slated to have limited overnight paid parking will in no way solve the problem of people in the center of town. There are more than enough residents in the immediate neighborhoods of Park Place and University Place to occupy all the spaces allowed.

I suggest that the Mayor and Council review the situation at once and come up with a quick solution.

JOHN LANE
7 Witherspoon Street

Editor's Note: Tickets for the 19 spaces in the Park Street lot and the 15 in the Mercer-University Place lot will be sold strictly on a first come first served basis. They will go on sale in Borough Administrator Mooney's office at 9 a.m. on September 3. If the experiment proves to be a success and demand exceeds supply, it is quite possible that the number will be increased.

Thanks for Fine Article.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

The N. E. A. T. Delicatessen's partners would like very much to express their appreciation to TOWN TOPICS for the very wonderful article that appeared in the paper a few weeks back.

Due to this article, your reporter made our Delicatessen known to many Princeton people. The public, also impressed by the article, has been patronizing our shop (which has been very good for our business.) Our customers have told us they read the write-up and complimented your reporter for covering everything very clearly and to detail.

If you could have witnessed the lovely remarks, it would have made you proud.

We would like TOWN TOPICS to know that we feel this is a fine service offered to a new business in Princeton and we are proud to be a part of it.

A philosopher friend asked us if we knew what it was that if we gave it away we always have more left than before we gave it away, and the more we give, the more we have left. We had to admit we weren't so fast in the puzzle department and soon got his explanation. "The answer," he said, "is Love," and the simplest way to prove it is to put it into general practice for a month or two. He asked if we had ever noticed how babies spontaneously show love for people, proving that we are born with love as part of our natural nature. And who gets more love than babies? "But then," he said, "little by little babies grow up, and in the process with the influences of the world, too much Love is lost along the way." He quoted a real sour cynic who, he says, said, "The trouble with babies is that they grow into people." "The happiest answer to the cynic," he said, "is the truth that sourness begets only more sourness, but love creates more love eventually if not immediately, and has never been known not to compound itself in the long run." In business in a pure sense the term Love can be translated into: "True and conscientious concern for a customer's welfare," which definitely is basic to our entire business policy. Hazardous Forecast Predicting the order of finish in the Ivy League is about as difficult as forecasting accurately in August what the weather will be on each of the nine football Saturday afternoons from late September through November.

There is no spring practice to determine the rate of a squad's progress; sophomores may develop unexpectedly fast to help a "dark horse" entry; and injuries may decimate the chances of a highly-regarded title-contender. The League has, however, asked newspapers and radio stations throughout the country to pick the 1963 ranking of the teams.

TOWN TOPICS' forecast

2. Dartmouth
3. Columbia
4. Cornell
5. Princeton

FOOTBALL OUTLOOK-IV
(This is the last of a series) of four articles on Princeton's football prospects for 1963.)

Four Haves, Four Have-Nots.
The line of demarcation between the top four and the bottom four in the Ivy League in 1963 appears relatively sharp. Of the quartet generally selected to finish in first division (Harvard, Dartmouth, Columbia, Cornell), any one of them could win the title without having such an achievement rank as an eye-popping upset.

Harvard and Dartmouth are strong choices to finish one-two, with the Crimson a slight pick because it has been less perforated by graduation and had its best freshman team in 35 years. Columbia and Cornell are equipped by two of the nation's top offensive stars in Archie Roberts and Gary Wood; if either of these teams can play good defensive football, they might well make it to the top.

Tigers Best of the Best. Going into the season with so many question marks after a disappointing performance in 1962, Princeton cannot be ranked with the favorites this fall. Its frequently porous defense permitted an average of 21 points in the last five Ivy games; against Harvard, in the contest that decided the runner-up spot, the offense was blanked.

The Tigers should, however, have enough to top second division this fall, and to rank with the top four if any one of the favorites falters. Penn is the only other team that might surprise with an upward movement; Yale, under a new coaching regime and still beset with manpower problems, is a year away from the inevitable New Haven renaissance, while Brown looks to be the door-mat once again despite its cheery whistling in the dark.

Harvard the Choice. Unusual strength up the middle (center, guard, quarterback, fullback).

22 returning lettermen and plus strong sophomores make Harvard the pick this season. The Crimson has finished in first division in each of the last four seasons and should make a real run for the title this fall.

Mike Bassett, an Andover product who has guided Harvard to victory in 11 of the 14 Ivy games he has quarterbacked, is a big key to anticipated success. The speed that Hobie Armstrong and Bill Taylor provided at halfback is gone, but Bill Grana, all-Ivy fullback in both his junior and senior years, will give Harvard tremendous punch up the middle. Center Brad Stephens, a fine blocker and linebacker, will anchor a line that will need initial rebuilding at end and tackle but will be ready for the big tests. If Harvard doesn't make it to the top, any other finish will be in the nature of an upset.

Dartmouth Strong Again. Having rolled up its first unbeaten season in almost 40 years, Dartmouth is confronted with the fact that even the law of averages will be working to prevent it from doing as well as it did in 1962. In more tangible form, the Indians have lost All-American Don McKinnon, a great linebacker now with the Boston Patriots. Bill King, a stand-out quarterback for three seasons, and Bill Wellstead, who ranked with the nation's top placekickers.

Twenty-four lettermen are back to help Bob Blackman add to his reputation of being the winningest Ivy coach. Chief among them are all-Ivy Tom Spangenberg, who set a league record last November when he ran for 208 yards against Princeton, Tom Parkinson, a highly capable blocking fullback in the Green's V-formation, guard Bill Orrman and end Scott Creelman.

The Harvard-Dartmouth meeting at Cambridge on October 26 will go further than any other single game to decide the 1963 title. If they win it, the Indians could become the first Ivy team to repeat as champions since the league became formal in 1956.

Sports In Princeton
Roberts a Fine Passer, Columbia's Archie Roberts earned the fine distinction as a sophomore of achieving the nation's leading pass percentage, but the Lions had trouble running. This year, it should be a different story, with Captain Al Butts providing the speed as a halfback and sophomore Arne Jensen, 215-lb. sophomore fullback, the power through the middle.
The Lions haven't the balance or the depth to rank as a season-long challenge to Harvard or Dartmouth but — like Cornell — they are capable of beating any Ivy opponent on a good day. Incidental note: such a late may well befall Princeton at Baker Field on October 5, with a Columbia victory ranking as the first over the Tigers since 1945.

Cornell Has Wood. Unable to contain quarterback Gary Wood at Ithaca last year, when he set an Ivy record against Princeton for total offense, the Tigers will have another look at this fine back on October 26. In Cornell's last five games, the Red averaged almost four touchdowns as he became one of the nation's most prolific performers.

Wood is, however, something of a one-man team, and Cornell's defensive play could not always make his heroics stand up for victory, as a 4-5 season's mark was compiled. The Ithacans appear capable of beating any team in the league on a given day, but the overall requirements of seven games may be more than they can handle as a title contender must.

Three Also-Rans. With two solid teams in Harvard and Dartmouth, and two high-scoring entries in Columbia and Cornell good first-division bets, and with Princeton waiting in the wings, there seems little chance of Penn, Yale and Brown finishing among the top four.

Former Princetonian John Stiegman, who has won only a third of his games since going to Penn three years ago, says he is optimistic about the upcoming season. He bases his hopes on 26 returning lettermen and a good crop of sophomores.
Football at Pennsylvania is not, however, in a completely healthy state, with morale problems occasionally reported and the campus paper demanding Stiegman's scalp. It's hard to see just who the Quakers will lead this season in addition to Lafayette, Brown and Yale, their 1962 victims.

New Coach at Yale, Jordan Olivar has gone and John Pont has come to New Haven from Miami, O., where he compiled a fine record and reputation. With a squad that won only two of nine games last season, no one is expecting first-year miracles, and none are likely to occur.
Pont must solve a major two-year problem at Yale — the lack of a first-rate quarterback. The Eli offense was so weak last season that it averaged only a touchdown a game in its last five contests. Things will be better in the Bowl this fall, but it's a long ways up and a .500 season is unlikely. By 1964, however, the Blue should be in the thick of it again.

Brown will spend the fall hoping for dry weather and a few holes in its opponents' pass defense. Quarterback Jim Dunda and end John Perry were a fine aerial combination as sophomores last year, with the latter setting three Ivy records as a receiver.

The Bruins remain, however, as the weakest Ivy squad in manpower and on defense (every opponent save Yale scored at least three TD's against them in 1962.) Last place looms again.

Princeton's non-league foes, Rutgers and Colgate, invariably have an edge on the Tigers because victory over the Orange and Black means so much to them. Rutgers, perennial opening-day target, has as many rebuilding problems as Princeton and may have trouble matching its 5-5 mark of a year ago. Colgate, a 16-15 winner here last fall but only 3-5-1 on the season, is two deep in lettermen at almost every position. Princeton is unlikely to rise to the occasion against this eager opponent.
Watch for the Columbia game, second on the Tigers' schedule, as an early but major turning point in the season. Odds are that if Princeton has enough to defeat Roberts and Co., it will be good enough to meet a majority of its 1963 opponents on even terms. If the Tigers lose that day, they may not keep abreast of the .500 mark in the coming campaign.

STABILITY IS NEAR
In PHS Scheduling. For several years now, the Princeton High School football schedule has, in one respect, resembled a new car: something new has been added or something has been taken away so that it no longer resembles the previous year's model.
Like the automotive industry, in some years the changes in the PHS football schedule were minor; in other years, they were major. The changes made in the 1962 schedule, for example, were tantamount to a complete model change. Three schools were dropped and four (all outside the boundaries of Mercer County) were added.

This year, too, the alterations have been considerable. Three of the four added in 1962 have been dropped in favor of three new schools — again, all outside Mercer County.

What's the reason for all this churning? The answer can be found in a policy more and more high schools have adopted to prevent just such schedule juggling: membership in a football conference.

From the start of its existence, Princeton High School has operated as an independent in football. As such, it was free to arrange its own schedule. But, with increasing frequency, PHS found it was unable to schedule traditional opponents.

Why? Because its rivals had, in the meantime joined a conference and first had to play other conference members. As a result, they had few open dates and those they did have often did not coincide with the date PHS was seeking to fill. In short, PHS found itself in the unenviable position of having a team but no opponent.

Now in Conference. Fortunately, the days of being a have-not are about to end for Princeton. Two years ago, PHS decided, somewhat reluctantly, according to its athletic director, Joseph Jingoli, to quit swimming against the tide. It applied for admission into the Central Jersey Group Four Conference, then in the process of being reorganized and was accepted.

"We liked operating as an independent," said Jingoli, "but it was a case of joining a conference or not being able to continue to play our traditional rivals. We either had to join or watch all the other schools pick up their marbles and go home."

Sports In Princeton

So starting in 1964 PHS will play six conference and three non-conference games. Commenting on the changeover PHS coach Dick Wood observed that it will mark the first time Princeton plays nine games. Nine is the maximum number of contests a high school can play in one season in New Jersey.

Wood is in favor of the change. Though he reported he is not certain now whether the six conference foes will be the same year after year, it will bring an end to facing several new schools each season.

The 1964 schedule

Sept. 26, Hamilton, away; Oct. 3, Thomas Jefferson, away; 10, Hunterdon Central, away; 17, Trenton High; 24, Ewing; 31, Somerville, away; Nov. 7, Steinert, away; 14, Notre Dame; 21, Madison.

The non-conference schools are Hunterdon Central, Somerville and Notre Dame. Among the newcomers are Thomas Jefferson, Notre Dame and Madison.

The 1963 schedule

Sept. 28, North Plainfield, away; Oct. 5, Steinert; 12, Hunterdon Central; 19, Trenton High, away; 26, Ewing, away; Nov. 2, Somerville; 9, Hamilton; 16, Cherry Hill.

The newcomers this year are Hunterdon Central, Somerville and Cherry Hill. All games will be played on Saturday, a policy begun two years ago. Four of the contests—Hunterdon, Ewing, Somerville and Cherry Hill—will be played in the morning.

HUN LISTS EIGHT

As Gridiron Foes, Hun School will play an eight-game football schedule in 1963. It is identical to last year's with one exception: Tower Hill has been replaced by Solebury.

Coach Hawley Waterman reported that football camp at Hun will start September 9. He will be assisted by Bob Simpson. A former quarterback on the Wheaton College of Illinois football team, Simpson first assisted Waterman last year when he was attending the Theological Seminary. He will join the Hun faculty in September.

The Red and Black will be co-captained this year by junior halfback Chuck Sellen and Mark Savidge, senior quarterback. A resident of Lambertville, Savidge will be the fourth Savidge brother to

To Labor on Labor Day

Labor Day—traditionally a holiday—will mark the beginning of labor for top officials of the 1963 Princeton High School football squad. Coach Dick Wood announced that the first practice will be held on Monday, September 2, at 10 a.m.

But before any player can throw that first practice block, he must have been examined by the school physician. Physical examinations will be held at the high school on August 29 and 30, starting at 8 a.m. Equipment will be issued at the same time.

For those who fail to be examined on one of these days, a third physical examination will be held September 2, at 10 a.m.

serve as captain or co-captain of the Hun squad.

The 1963 schedule: Sept. 28, Pennington; Oct. 5, Perkio men, away; 12, Germantown Friends; 19, Solebury, away; 25, Friends Central, away; Nov. 2, Pingry; 9, George School; 16, Delbarton, away.

FALL SPORTS SCHEDULED

By Lawrenceville School. The Lawrenceville School has scheduled seven football games, five at home and two away, as the highlight of its fall sports season.

The team will open its season on September 28 against Williamson Trade School, and close on November 9 with the traditional game against The Hill School. It will make two trips to New England, one to Andover, Mass., to continue home-and-home series against Phillips Academy, and the other to play the Choate School in Wallingford, Conn.

The schedule: Sept. 28, Williamson Trade School; Oct. 5, Episcopal High School; 12, Andover at Andover, Mass.; 19, The Peddie School; 26, Merceburg Academy; Nov. 2, The Choate School at Wallingford, Conn.; 9, The Hill School.

The soccer team will play a total of 16 teams, opening with Pennington High School on September 25. The cross-country team will have the first of ten meets against Bordenown Military Institute at Bordenown on September 28.

PLAYOFFS UNDER WAY

In Business Softball. Engineering Research, a second-division team during most of the regular season, survived a four-way playoff for fourth place last week in the Business Softball League. As a result, ERC was scheduled to begin a best-of-three semi-final round this week against Educational Testing with defending champion RCA opposing Electro. —Continued on Page 19

INNER DEFENSE: The infielders of ERC and Accelerator pose prior to their playoff game for fourth place in the Princeton Business Softball League. Standing, l. to r., are: Don Machusak, 3b; Roger Cole, ss; Don Probst, 2b; and Russ Marrone, 1b. For Accelerator: George Cassidy, 1b; Floyd Leach, ss; Rich Gervasio, 2b; and Ken Schenck, 3b. ERC won 15-10.

Mechanical Research in the other bracket.

The second round is set for Thursday, with the deciding game to be played next Tuesday if required. The finals, for the TOWN TOPICS Championship Bowl, will follow, with all games played on the University athletic fields off College Road.

In the preliminary round of the unusual fourth-place playoff, necessitated when four teams all finished with identical 8-8 records, Accelerator defeated Columbian Carbon, 5-2, and ERC edged American Cyanamid, 4-3. It required a two-run rally by ERC — powered by doubles off the bats of Bill Feirabend, Jeff Gange and Dan Borbast — to overcome a 3-2 deficit and give Don Musinski the victory.

That tight decision was followed by a 15-10 marathon in which ERC broke away from a 10-10 tie to eliminate Accelerator. Bob Easton's heavy hitting (single, triple and two homers in four at bats) and a home-run by Don Machusak that paced the winning rally were the big factors in the ERC attack. Jerry Pazdan was the winning pitcher.

MAKE-UP GAMES REMAIN

In Girls' Softball, Unbeaten Thorne's has first - place wrapped up in the Girls' Softball League, with ten victories in as many games and only two remaining contests. The other places are settled, too, although the Warriors could drop into a second-place tie if they fail to win at least one of their last four games.

In action last week, ERC dropped a pair to complete its season without a triumph in 12 starts. Thorne's took the cellar-dwellers' measure, 31 to 3, powered by home runs credited to Pat Brown, Kathy Palocce, Bee Baker, Sarah Honeycutt, Pat Hibbs and Carol Rainey. Dot Voorhees drove in two of the losers' runs, with Faith Peterson bringing in the third.

Jerry Meyers of the Hospital pitched a 7-4 victory over ERC, hitting a home run in the process, with Barbara Burkhardt following suit. Dot Voorhees was the losing pitcher.

The standings:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Thorne's	10	0	1.000
Warriors	6	2	.750
Hospital	4	6	.400
ERC	0	12	.000

BOOKLET IS AVAILABLE

On Fish and Game Laws. The New Jersey Fish and Game Division of the Department of Conservation and Economic Development has announced that a booklet on the state's 1963 game laws is now available. It can be obtained without charge from hunting license dealers and municipal clerks.

Among the booklet's standard features are basic laws on licensing and hunting, a table of hunting seasons, bag limits by species and the addresses of all state conservation officers. Of special interest is a map of public lands open to hunters.

On December 9, opening day of the deer season, nine deer-checking stations will be established throughout the state.

NEW JERSEY

...has 12 state forests!

Last year, more than 2 million people visited New Jersey's State Forests to go bathing, picnicking, hiking, hunting and fishing. Twelve State Forests, totalling over 160,000 acres, give New Jerseyites a wonderful opportunity to enjoy beautiful scenic views, rugged mountain terrain, quiet glens and verdant valleys.

It might be surprising to learn that 43% of our land area is still in forest and 28% is devoted to farming. It's one more example of how much New Jersey offers its citizens . . . why it is a great state!

SHUTTLE RUNS OFF

Brakes Apparently Faulty. Since 1867 the shuttle train between Princeton and Princeton Junction has faithfully performed its task of carrying the great, the near-great and anybody else with the price of a ticket between Princeton and the Pennsylvania's main line to New York. (In Philadelphia, they capitalize "main line" and consider living down by the tracks a curious kind of status symbol. In Princeton, the "main line" is merely four sets of tracks with New York at one end and, so legend goes, Philadelphia somewhere in the other direction.)

Last week on Wednesday night about 11 p.m. the shuttle took an unfaithful trip carrying nobody from Princeton to the Junction and on to Plainsboro's Walker-Gordon Dairies, finally halting there completely uncowed. Damages were minimal, injuries were none, but the unwarranted publicity that followed showed again that a Princeton label on a story can be hurtful as well as helpful.

As one of the train crew said, mostly in jest, partly in exasperation, last Friday: "Every such-and-so reporter in the East has been phoning me about this. Isn't there any other news?" It seems clear that, if the brief runaway-without-incident had occurred, for example, between Hardwick and East Hardwick, Vt., the press would not have given it the slightest notice.

But, because it happened in Princeton, the press black-typed it as if it were a second Casey Jones job (without Casey or anyone else aboard, of course). The New York Times, for instance, gave it 18 inches including a quaint map on page one of its second section. It might well give less to the outbreak of nuclear war in Erewhon.

Pie on You, Times. The map, a cartographer's fiction, showed Washington Street where Washington Road has always been. It labeled a large area beyond the Junction as the location of a thriving "Berrien City" (which is merely longtime Junctionese for the Junction), and it put the Walker-Gordon Dairies clearly but quite inaccurately west of the Junction.

Another paper belabored the three-mile slide as "A Great 'British' Comedy Starring Nassau's PJ&B." "British" maybe, if the scriptwriter insists; but "comedy," no.

At least one paper, of course, couldn't resist gridding in "The Little Engine That Could" approach. Right on down to the "I knew I could . . . I knew I could" bit.

What really happened? According to the best and most logical evidence, the air brakes let go — one of those things that "couldn't happen," has never happened before but finally did.

No Power On. Some members of the wayward press hinted that there was some power on. Impossible. Power can be activated only by the operator, and he was not on the train. He, with the other trainmen, was in the crew's quarters in the trackside freight station on a customary coffee break (not "off" or "away" for coffee as some reported).

Other reporters, probably all honor graduates of the Lionel school of O-gauge railroading, suggested that maybe the brakes weren't set. Best authority, however, also refutes this.

The operator is said to have set the brakes in the wheelhouse just as always. The hand-brakes, vestigial excrescences in each car, were not set. But they never are, except in dire emergencies. Like when a herd of buffalo stampedes across the tracks.

The train wasn't pushed by hand to start it rolling downhill the way it was a few years ago. It takes a lot of manpower for that, and besides college isn't in session.

Decision This Week. Railroad inspectors have been Sherlocking the errant train and its crew closely about the incident in advance of a railroad "trial" this week in Trenton. At the present, all evidence seems to point to faulty air pressure in the brakes.

If that was indeed the cause, the shuttle's deservedly popular crew can go back on the job with their usual skill and unusual (for the railroad, at least) helpfulness and good cheer. Meanwhile, a more over-pressed bit of bad luck couldn't have happened to a nicer bunch of guys.

CAN'T PARK HERE

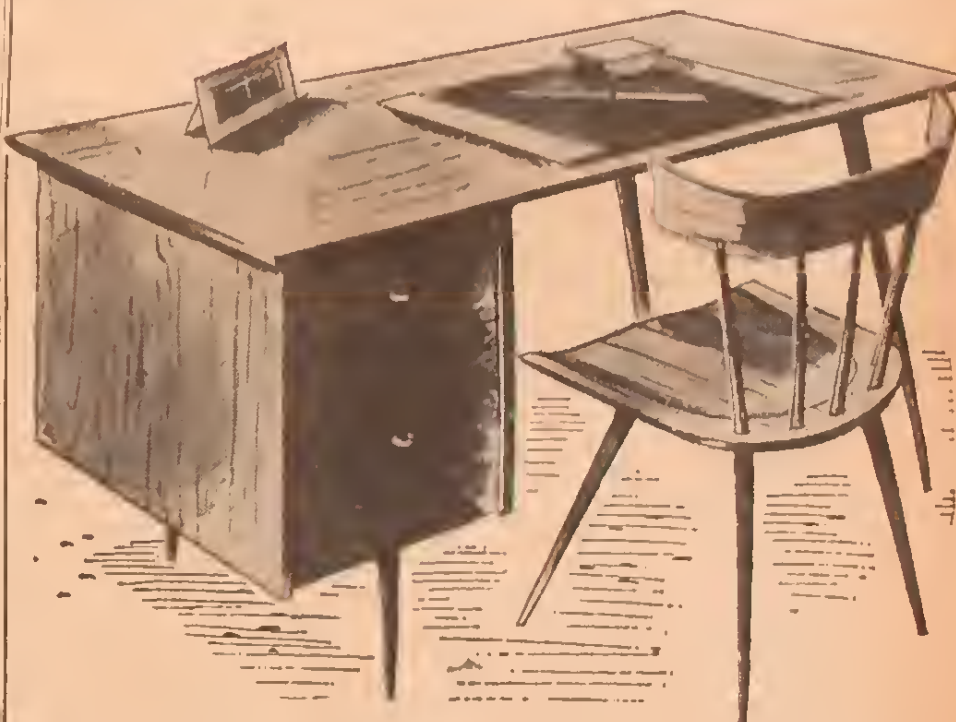

At Night, That Is. All-night parkers — if 2-6 a.m. can be called "all night" — were detoured away from four Township streets by a new ordinance passed Monday night by Township Committee.

Witherspoon, Harris Road, Jefferson Road and Moore Street will no longer be available after 2 a.m. The ordinance is a compromise one, scaled down from the original plan to ban overnight parking throughout the Township.

Hardship in such areas as Leigh and Birch Avenues caused Committee to reconsider.

Committee also decided to limit parking on the east side of Witherspoon to a two-hour stay between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. Parking is forbidden altogether on the east side of Witherspoon in the Borough. The ordinance, recommended by the Traffic Safety Committee, is

The First Aid and Rescue Squad will have quicker access to the southbound lane on North Harrison when the Township cuts through the traffic island near the rescue squad's new building. At present, emergency equipment headed south must first go north to the shopping center intersection and try to buck shopping center traffic before edging into the southbound lane. The new slot in the island will be open only to emergency vehicles, not to general traffic.

To Widen Ewing Street. The provision was part of an ordinance which also provides for widening Ewing between Milanes and Route 206, and solving the drainage problem on Ewing between Oakland and Guyot.

The low bid on the Alexander Street realignment had to be thrown out on a legal technicality, and it was more than the amount recommended by the state anyway. The realignment is being done with state aid so the Township must now start all over again.

TEENS HELP MIGRANTS
In New Program, "you teach them something, and when they catch on, their eyes light up so you don't find that with most grade school kids."
"We were friends from the very first day."
"Would I do it again? Extremely!"

High school girls from Princeton, these are. They're talking about the young migrant boys and girls they taught this summer at the state's school for migrant children in Cranbury. School closed last Friday.

Recruited as volunteers in a program conceived by Mrs. Richard Colman and Mrs. Kees Bol, 15 teenagers served as recreation aides to the regular classroom teachers at the Cranbury school. (State law does not allow uncertified persons to do the actual academic teaching.)

"Rewarding . . . "Responsible." The young aides worked in teams of three, each team serving at the school all day every day for a full week. Before the five-week term opened on July 15, all the volunteers attended a training session run by Mrs. Bol, who has had extensive experience training camp counsellors.

Although State officials welcomed the idea of volunteer help, many of them maintained a wait-and-see outlook. Eager, starry-eyed teenagers might easily find reasons to slay home if the going got rough. But the program worked out very well indeed, and will most certainly be repeated in 1964. "It has been rewarding for us," said Mrs. Chrystine Shack, principal of the school. "The volunteers were always responsible, and some of them willingly did extra work, like going after school to the 'Y' in Trenton to help instructors who were teaching these migrant children how to swim."

We Were Friends. "We learned all these games and songs to teach the children," recalls Joanne Luther, "but those ten-year-olds — all they wanted was to play baseball, boys and girls. So we played baseball. They accepted me right away, and we were friends from the first day, not as a teacher, but as a companion."

"And they taught us games they had made up themselves, one called 'Uncle Jesse' I remember, and a lot of rhythm games. They are very well coordinated children and do a lot of rhythmic things."

Miss Luther thinks more boy volunteers would have been a help because so many of the older migrant boys wanted to play football, and the girl volunteers weren't much good at that.

There were 97 boys and girls enrolled in the state's five-week program. The top age is 12 because at 13 they can go into the fields and work.

Jovent Games Themselves. Another volunteer, Ray Vuglen, says the student helpers weren't needed much on the playground because the boys and girls make up their own games. "Only the little ones need help," she says, "with things like jumping rope and playing 'cat-and-mouse.'"

Indoors, the volunteers showed the littlest children how to make collage designs with anything they happened to find: bits of screen, nails, scraps of cloth. They held laboratory sessions in the making of flour - water paste, and showed the boys and girls how to make instruments out of anything they might have at home, like a nice noisy pot-lid.

Idealism certainly motivated the Princeton young people who volunteered, but it was a cool-headed idealism. One girl apparently pictured herself in a lovely country meadow outside Cranbury, reading aloud to a raptured circle of little angels, but she was the only one with this approach, and she quickly rallied.

Because it wasn't quite like that. There were discipline problems, and Miss Vuglen found it quite important to establish authority on the very first day.

Rapport Is Easy. "But I had no trouble making a rapport with these kids, and I don't think the others did, either," Miss Vuglen says. "These migrant children are worldly-wise in a sad kind of way, not at all carefree like most children. They have known such hardships and they have seen things most kids haven't seen."

"Most of us who volunteered were sincerely moved by their plight — 'good-time Charlies' wouldn't have volunteered in the first place. I signed up because I'm so concerned about integration."

Those who participated in the training program were (primary) Jay Lockard, Julie Stohman, Diana Dillon, Lana-dee Liebttag and Karen Fraser (intermediate) Judy Seacop, Leslie Fonger, Diane Seaman, Margot Stein and Susie Gilwood; (senior) Don Blumenfeld, Joanne Luther, Kathy Utman, Ray Vuglen and Jim Baer.

FIRST ROUND PLAYED
In Springdale Women's Golf, Mrs. James J. Whelan shot an 82 to lead the qualifiers for the annual women's club championship at Springdale Golf Club on Monday. Sixteen qualified for the match play which started Tuesday.
Leading the field is hardly a novelty for Mrs. Whelan. She won the woman's championship at Springdale 11 years in a row, from 1951 through 1961, and did not enter the competition last year or her record might well have been 12 consecutive victories.

The outcome of first round matches. Mrs. James L. Wurga beat Mrs. James S. Thornton, 3 and 2. Mrs. Robert S. Cullen beat Mrs. Curtis A. Mitchell, 6 and 7. Mrs. Hans G. Baer beat Mrs. Donald A. Fruland, 4 and 2. Mrs. John Cullen beat Miss Margaret Regan, 8 and 7. Also, Mrs. James J. Whelan beat Mrs. Karl D. Pettit Jr. 6 and 4; Mrs. Horace T. Cook Jr. beat Mrs. Raymond A. Bowers, 8 and 6; Mrs. Wallace McLean beat Mrs. Alan C. Poole, 6 and 5; Mrs. Kenneth J. Dawes beat Mrs. J. Harris Mathey, 4 and 3.

In a nine-hole ladies' day handicap tournament on Tuesday, Mrs. Fred M. Blaicher and Mrs. Robert J. Sullivan tied with a low net of 46. Mrs. Sullivan was declared the winner on the basis of matching score-cards.

JUNIOR GOLF RESULTS
At Springdale Last Week. Bill Pettit was first in the 12-15 age group handicap gold tournament at Springdale Golf Club last week on Wednesday. Bob McCarthy placed second. Among those in the 10 to 12 group, Lou Bowers was first, with Doug Houghton second. Lilli Baker won first place among the girls competing, and Ingrid Peterson was runner up.
Miss Peterson, 16, had a gross score of 50 for nine holes, the lowest gross for any of the competitors in the three tournaments.

ENGINE 1 GRABS LEAD
In Playoff Finals. Engine No. 1, recently-crowned champions of the Police Baseball League, defeated the Eagles Monday in the first game of a three-game series to determine the league's playoff champion. The score was 11-5.

The second meeting between the two teams was scheduled for Wednesday. If a third contest is necessary, it will be held on Monday.

Teams which finished 1-2-3-4 at the end of regular season play participated in the playoff. Last week, Eagles, who finished third, defeated second-place Engine No. 3, 14-0, and Engine No. 1 outlasted the fourth-place Lions, 10-7, to qualify for the playoff finals.

News Of The CHURCHES

"THOSE RUSTY WHEELS"

Clergy Hit the Books. An experiment in keeping the clergy up to date is going on at Princeton Seminary.

"We're not running a hospital for dead or dying minds. This is advanced study for those who really care," says the director of the Center of Continuing Education, the Rev. Dr. Richard Gilbert. A young fireball with a free-wheeling sense of humor, he has been luring pastors into the Seminary since November 1962.

The Center is a brain spark of Dr. James I. McCord, Seminary president, who obtained a three-year grant from the James Foundation, New York City. Thirty seminars, averaging about a week in length, were held last year—and the pace will increase. "We ought to have 600 clergymen of all faiths in study here, maybe about 40 of them in long-term study of a month or more."

Sabbatical. The Center is writing to every church within a 100-mile area, recommending that a two-weeks sabbatical for hard study be given to their minister. Dr. Gilbert says, "It's this expanding knowledge thing, again... If he hasn't been reading, he's getting behind."

The Center is quartered in the Seminary's guest house at 12 Library Place, the former Walker Stevenson residence. The clergymen sleep in the guest house but eat across the way with the seminarians. "The students are interested in this whole thing," the director notes with amusement. "They say, 'Thought they were over the hill and gone!'"

The "bread and butter" courses offered at regular intervals are in counseling, administration and preaching. "But we cover the waterfront here, from archaeology and anxiety through the alphabet!"

The System. A clergyman interested in the Center receives a three-page, multiple-choice questionnaire, which seeks out areas of his strength and weakness.

"We ask what are their chief frustrations in the pastorate. (We leave a big space for that.) And we ask what are their chief satisfactions. We try to shape a program for a man and include interviews with a faculty member in his area of need."

"We send him a list of books to read, plus orders to read two specific books—one that is easy, the C. S. Lewis type, and one that is hard going—really makes him dig. One or two months later, by the time he arrives here, the rusty wheels are beginning to turn."

Creative Scholarship. Fourteen hours of study a day is the norm at the seminars. There is give and take with the Seminar's scholar-teachers and with outstanding leaders from all over the country. "And then it's back to the library for more hard study. For some of them, this is quite a shock!"

"The hope is that they will go home and continue to study, just busting out all over." The Center has already welcomed repeaters.

"This is what we love. Wish we could work up a rotating cadre of the most creative minds in this area and take them in two times a year."

Dr. McCord, who reads two books a night between 11 p.m. and 1 a.m., chats informally with each group on his recent reading. "He just comes and talks to us," Dr. Gilbert reports.

"It is infectious when you hear this great mind walking through the pages of the great and less great. You're infected by the same desire to learn from them. He has this spirit of scholarship, a belief in hard, creative study."

TO REPAIR TOWER

Of Trinity Church. Restoration of the Trinity Church tower will begin "immediately," the wardens have announced in a letter to parishioners. The church was gutted in an all-day fire on February 13.

DR. RICHARD GILBERT, sportsman, former advertising man and PFC in the 94th Infantry, who graduated from Princeton Seminary in 1951, now leads the Seminary's back-to-school program for the clergy.

Richard K. Paynter Jr. and Hugh D. Wise Jr. noted that the vestry's Reconstruction Committee is now weighing two basic plans for rebuilding the church, "but there is no choice in the reconstruction of the tower."

Initial plans, calling for $650,000 in new construction, alterations and furnishings, plus $100,000 to cover the debt on All Saints' Chapel, drew dissent from a number of parishioners in June.

The two new plans, prepared by Adams & Woodbridge of New York, will be presented to church members early in September.

FESTIVAL PLANNED

In Franklin Park, St. Augustine's Parish, Franklin Park, will hold its first Labor Day fair from August 28 to September 1. The five-day event includes church suppers, rides for children and adults, bazaar booths and games of chance.

Proceeds will go to the new parish school, which opens this fall under the direction of the Sisters of St. Francis, Glen Riddle, Pa. The Rev. John J. Reilly, pastor, and the Rev. Donal O'Farrell, assistant, are general chairmen.

The church dinners, served from 6 to 8 p.m., are under the direction of Mrs. P.J. Patinka. Other chairmen are: Raymond Doscher, beverage booth; Edward Lundy and John Duffy, booths; Mrs. John Geng and Mrs. Frank Marciano, country store; Julius Varga and Richard Burchinal, maintenance; Louis Kozma, parking; Veronica Dupras, cashiers, and John Leonard, 50-50 Raffle.

The fair will be held evenings at the school, Henderson Road, between U.S. 1 and Highway 27.

Seminary Discord

A dissenter at Princeton Seminary has thrown the gauntlet at President James I. McCord.

"Dr. McCord is a dilettante at baseball compared to your humble servant here," says Dr. Richard Gilbert, head of the Seminary's Continuing Education Center.

"Dr. McCord is a Yankee fan and I am a Giant fan—a greater distance there cannot be. Anyone who can prefer Mickey Mantle to Willie Mays is personally, as well as theologically, suspect."

Dr. McCord could not be reached for comment.

A "PLANTATION" . . . near Princeton? It seems unbelievable, but when you first glimpse this pillared mansion, on an eminence shaded by mammoth trees, you suddenly understand why these old homes, built in the early 1800's evoked such nostalgia. On five beautiful acres, protected by forty more acres, the Audubon Society, this house offers (first floor — center hall, living room with fireplace, sitting room, library, dining room, full bath, and, of course, pantry, kitchen, laundry. (Second

A CZAR IS BORN

"The Chairman shall have the authority to bar from any public meeting any person making impertinent or slanderous remarks while addressing the Board and such person thereafter continue to be barred from the public meeting of the Board until such time as the Board, by majority vote, permits such person to again attend the public meetings of the Board."

Now, who do you suppose would assume such intimidating authority? The Chairman of the Board? What worried power group would seize upon a slither like this to keep their "public" in line? The oppressive officials of some racket-dominated union local? The manipulators of some crooked corporation?

No, there's no need to look so far afield for the source of the rule we've quoted. The (Zoning) Board of Adjustment in Lawrence Township adopted this little gem in June of this year. It's just one of a remarkable new set of regulations designed to keep the general public from interfering with the Board's prime business—the granting of recommending of large-scale variances for underserving applicants.

To sum up our reaction to the new rules in one word: HELP!

Are New Homes Sold . . or . . Bought?

When the time comes to move from one place to another, most of us look forward to the prospect with some trepidation. At best, relocating is done with mixed emotions; at worst, it is a traumatic experience. The strain usually begins when you get down to selecting a new home.

We believe that homes are always bought . . not sold. A subtle distinction, perhaps, but the most expert salesperson cannot sell you a home that you do not like and the home that fills your requirements will be bought without any sales pressure.

At Princeton Ridge, our models are open every day from 9:00 in the morning until sunset. There are no salespeople "on duty." If our homes appeal to you, we believe that you will tell us directly.

When you are in the market for a full value home in the Princeton school district, please pay us a visit. If Princeton Ridge suits your taste, needs, and bank account, you will buy . . not be sold . . one of our homes.

In Rocky Hill Adjoining Princeton

Priced From $29,900

DIRECTIONS: Boyold Lane or Harrison Street to Route 206 north. At first traffic light—Washington Street (Rte. 518), Rocky Hill—turn right to models.

Only A Few Left! Your Last Chance . . .

This may be your last opportunity to buy a Nassau Estates II Home inasmuch as our summer sales have fluctuated to a new high. Since the inception of Nassau Estates I, over 400 units have been sold and the final home looms in the not-too-far future. This will probably be the last opportunity to acquire a worthwhile home in the highly respected Lawrence-Princeton area. Remember, a Nassau Estates' home always retains its value . . . down through the years. If you are desirous of living at Nassau Estates, make it a must to visit our many sample homes . . . open every day from noon 'til dark including Sundays.

YOU GET IT WITH YOUR APARTMENT HERE!

Honest! There's an 18-hole golf course right on the property. And it's yours to use when you live here. Hate golf? You'll still welcome Princeton Windsor Apartments like a winning sweepstakes ticket. 2 swimming pools, tennis courts, badminton courts are on the property... and on the house. Your children will attend The Preferred Princeton High School. And that's not all! Your apartment enjoys a secluded country setting... and includes a 20' terrace, central air conditioning, reserved parking, closed-circuit TV system that lets you watch the children at pool-side from your kitchen. The tents? From $149 for a 4-room suite; From $197.50 for a 5-room suite.
